TRAP 50,000 RUSSIANS

SLAVS GIVE UP KOVNO DEFENCE

PETROGRAD, Aug. 7.—Six hundred thousand new recruits are on the way to the front to reinforce the Russian army, it was announced today. More soldiers will be dispatched daily.

By FREDERICK WERNER.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—Devastation unparalleled in the present war is being wrought by the Russian army of Grand Duke Nicholas as it falls back before the advance of the Austro-German troops in Poland. Railroads are being torn up, bridges destroyed and towns and villages given over to flames.

50,000 IN STRONGHOLD TRAPPED.

Food supplies that cannot be carried along are destroyed and crops wiped out. Nothing that could be of any value to the Austro-Russian armies is being left behind.

The outer forts of Novo Georgievsk are being vigorously bombarded by the Germans. Novo Georgievsk is now isolated and German military experts predict its early capture along with the army of 50,000 men that is believed to be in the fortress.

COMMANDS VISTULA.

The Russians are reported today beaten on their new line of defence, having abandoned Kovno, near Vilna, on the railway to Petrograd.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Copenhagen says:

"The Russians are evacuating Kovno. The Governor and his staff and the banks have gone. The population has been leaving for the past week."

Kovno, a fortress of the first class, is the capital of the province of the same name in Northwest Russia. It

THE CALEDONIANS CAME OUT TODAY; SAE DID THE SUN

Highland costumes were the real fashion at the Caledonian Grove.

Here's a kittie girl, one of thousands at picnic. She is Amy Quigley and with others shared in the dance honors at the great celebration of the Scottish Society.

Hoot, mon, dinna ye ken why the sun came oot today?

'Twas for the big Caledonian pictic, of course. In sunshine they marched out to the Caledonian Grove in West Roxbury, did the members of the Boston Caledonian Club, and there they and several thousands of their friends made merry on their annual outing.

Everybody in the Scots' "Wha's Wha?" was there, and there were guests galore besides. And in addition to the grownups there were laddies and lassies, in kilties and tartans, all their faces as happy as the beaming sunlight and bright and happy and merry and brecht, and so many big features that it wad take some giftie indeed to tell about it all.

Some said there were 5,000 there. There were probably many more.

REVIEWED BY MAYOR.

There were several hundred guests from out of town, members of Scotch organizations in New York, Providence, Wilkesbarre, Pa., Worcester, Lawrence, Fall River, Chicago, Portland, Me., Lynn and other cities. Many of these took part in the parade which opened the day's program.

The procession formed at Boylston and Washington streets, where Chief Thomas Grieves of the club gave the order to march at 9:30 o'clock. In line was the Highland Association Pipe and Brass Band. And as at the word from the chief the bagpipes struck up, their skirling attracted the attention of thousands along the streets.

In front of City Hall the parade was reviewed by Mayor Curley and other officials. The parade wound up at the South Station. The Highland costumes attracted as much attention as the music of the bagpipes, and among the girls who looked most cunning in kilties were Hilda Veasey and Hester Veasey, Maris Moore, Amy Quigley, Amelia Quinsey and Pauline Forbes.

Chief Grieves was in command and on his staff were a number of former chiefs of the Caledonian Club including John G. Munro, William A. Riggs, James Grant, John McIsaac, Robert Anderson, George Scott and James and Robert Urquhart.

FIFTEEN-MILE MARATHON.

On the picnic grounds there were numerous Scotch dances, with a contest for the best dressed Highlander. These were followed by the big athletic program, features on which were the fifteen-mile marathon run, starting at the State House, the five-mile race, football and other sports.

The games began at 2 p. m. Among the entries in the five-mile professional run were Abbie Wood, Billy Quest, Ted Crooks and others, and the entries in the amateur events included Foley, the Harvard sprinter, and Loomis of Tech, in the hundred yard dash; Bowzer, in the 440-yard dash; Mahoney and Dow in the 880, and Mahoney in the mile. Larry Whitney of the B. A. A. was entered in the shotput, and Walter Whalen in the high jump. In the marathon were entered Cliff Horan, Jimmy and Tommy Hennigan and Roth and Rathgeb.

The B. A. A. team was picked as the favorite in the open relay race for the Walter Scott trophy.

German Employers Oppose Further Call

ZURICH, Switz., Aug. 7.—Private reports from Berlin say the calling up of the untrained landsturm, between the ages of forty-two and forty-five, in various towns, generally is meeting with vigorous opposition on the part of manufacturers, who have held several conferences with the military authorities.

Mutiny on Interned German Ship Checked

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 7.—Police aided officers of the German steamer Liebengels, laid up here since the war began, in preventing a threatened mutiny of the ship's East Indian crew.

American Tour Party Off to Los Angeles Tonight

Members of the AMERICAN'S California tour party are today at Del Monte, California, after four days at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, according to a telegram received today. The party leaves for Los Angeles tonight.

During the last few days the guests of the AMERICAN have not only visited the Exposition, but have seen the famous big trees and made trips to the beautiful beach at Santa Cruz as well. Following is the telegram:

"Del Monte, Cal., Aug. 7, 1915.
"AMERICAN,
"Boston.

"AMERICAN'S tourist party left San Francisco Thursday morning after four busy days viewing the splendid exhibits. Party particularly pleased with the grandeur of the night illumination, the architectural designs of the various buildings and the harmonious color display. Visited big trees, and at Santa Cruz beach all enjoyed the bathing. Arrived Del Monte Hotel 6 p. m. All well and happy. Start Los Angeles tonight. Weather here grand. Regards.

REVERE GRAFT ARRESTS

BLAZE AT BEVERLY FARMS

The Italian Summer embassy at Beverly Farms, occupied by Count Vincenzo Macchi di Cellere, Italian Ambassador, and his family, was damaged by fire today.

The fire caused great excitement in the Farms Summer colony, and at first gave rise to wild rumors as to its origin, but later came an official statement from the Beverly Fire Department that the flames started from a range in the laundry, communicating with the house through partitions.

Count and Countess di Cellere, and their two children, Agnese, nine, and Stefano, seven, were in the home at the time. All four assisted the servants in removing furnishings from the portion of the house threatened by the flames.

Summer residents volunteered assistance. When the firemen came they had to lay about a thousand feet of horse to reach the fire. The chief damage was to the laundry.

The embassy is one of the show places of the farms section of Beverly, and is known as "Pitch Pine Hall." John D. Rockefeller, Jr., formerly occupied the house.

For several weeks, according to Beverly people, the embassy has been guarded by secret service men from Washington.

The fire loss will be about $500 according to the police.

Wilson to Aid in Probe of Eastland

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—President Wilson will take a personal hand next week in the Department of Commerce's inquiry into the Eastland tragedy at Chicago. It was asserted that the inquiry had been suspended pending conferences between the Chief Executive and Secretary Redfield.

Captain Deserted to Enlist as a Private

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The British Press Bureau relates the incident of Captain H. B. Smart of the Fifty-third Sikhs, who, because of his desire to serve in France, deserted his command and enlisted under an assumed name as a private.

Smart was "killed" at Festubert, but though dead, has been restored on the army roster to his captaincy.

Pan American Doctrine.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—A Pan American Doctrine to supersede the Monroe Doctrine, and to form an offensive and defensive alliance between the United States and every republic of South and Central America, will be advocated at the conference on national defence, October 4-7.

DRIVER OF CAR IS HELD

Mystery surrounds the midnight auto ride of twenty-two-year-old "Vinnie" Driscoll of No. 333 Maverick street, East Boston, who is at the Relief Station, feared to be dying from a fractured skull and concussion of the brain.

She was brought to the hospital early today in an automobile driven by Thomas A. Cunningham, twenty-eight years old, a married man with one child, living at No. 26 Peverill street, Dorchester. He is proprietor of the Cunningham Motor Renting Company.

Cunningham told the police that Miss Driscoll received her injuries while alighting from the car, that she fell, striking her head. This happened, he said, on the way from Nantasket to Boston.

Miss Driscoll is a daughter of William Driscoll. "Vinnie" is a nickname, her given name is Helen. She is the eldest of ten children. The family were at the bedside of the girl today.

Mrs. Smith, an aunt, was taking care of the children. She said:

STORY OF AUNT.

"We knew Mr. Cunningham, but always supposed he was a single man. He has taken Mrs. Driscoll and Vinnie's sisters to ride, but we did not know he was taking Vinnie.

"Vinnie left home early last night to visit a chum in Chelsea. We did not know that she was with him. In fact Vinnie was said to be engaged to another man."

While she was talking the chum called to offer her condolences. She declined to give her name. The chum said:

"Vinnie was to have called at my house last evening, but she did not. I haven't any idea how she came to go outing last night with Cunningham.

"Vinnie and have two friends staying at Nantasket. They are Madeline Morse and Anna McCormack. It was through Miss Morse that Vinnie met Mr. Cunningham. This may be one reason why they went to Nantasket."

The chum works for the same firm as Miss Driscoll. This is the Boston

Report Italian Submarine Sunk in the Adriatic

PARIS, Aug. 7.—The Italian submarine Nereide is reported to have been sunk off Pelagosa Island in the Adriatic Sea by an Austrian submarine, according to word received privately from Rome today.

The Nereide carried a crew of seventeen men. She was built two years ago.

Mendoza Auto Runs Over Boy in Chelsea Street

Eleven-year-old Vincent Casey of No. 12 Spencer avenue, Chelsea, was probably fatally injured today by being run down by an automobile, owned by Councilman Jacob Mendoza of Revere, and operated by his son, Victor Mendoza. The boy is at the Front Hospital, Chelsea, suffering from internal injuries.

The accident occurred opposite No. 23 Spencer avenue, near the boy's home, when he attempted to cross in front of the automobile. He was knocked down by the mudguard and the rear wheel passed over his body.

In an attempt to avoid hitting the boy, Mendoza steered the automobile upon the sidewalk and into a fence. He was not held by the police, eyewitnesses of the accident declaring he was blameless. The father of young Mendoza was indicted today by the Suffolk County Grand Jury in connection with the graft investigation.

Runs to Hospital With Dying Child

Five-year-old Maggie Puopulo, of No. 145 Endicott street, West End, received injuries which will probably result fatally in a fall of five stories. She was playing on the fire escape and lost her balance. Ralph Morandi of No. 131 Endicott street ran to the Relief Hospital with the child in his arms.

6 INDICTED IN LICENSE INQUIRY

Six men indicted by the Suffolk County Grand Jury charged with grafting in connection with Revere junk licenses surrendered at Boston Police Headquarters today.

The Revere men who are under arrest on indictment warrants are:

William Gordon, No. 135 Mountain avenue.

Jacob Mendom, No. 551 Beach street.

John T. Dalzell, No. 587 Winthrop avenue.

Frank J. Sullivan, No. 527 Revere street.

Jacob Romberg, No. 702 Beach street.

Benjamin S. Sias, No. 141 Warren street.

Romberg is charged with giving a "gratuity." All the rest are charged with accepting a "gratuity."

The men were arraigned before Judge Keating in the Superior Criminal Court and held in $2,000 for trial. Mendoza, Gordon and Romberg furnished bail and were released.

MAYOR STARTS PROBE.

The matter came to official notice when three Junkmen complained to Mayor Curtis of Revere that they had been told they would have to give up $150 in addition to the $200 fee or they could not receive their licenses.

The Mayor called in the Chief of Police, and as a result of a conference, they decided to bring the matter to the attention of the district attorney.

After the preliminary investigation it looked as if the prosecution would be confined to the alleged go-between, as there was no other evidence than that of the three Junkmen that they had paid money to him.

When the go-between learned that

Comfort of Tenants Is the Prime Factor

Considered by the owners of the buildings who list their suites in the "Apartment To Let" columns of the Boston AMERICAN. These owners and their agents realize that efficient service pays in the long run, and as a result the tenants of these buildings get the maximum in comfort, equipment, and service, for the money spent.

Turn to the "Apartment" columns of the AMERICAN today. You will find an unusually large assortment from which to choose. There are apartments of all sizes advertised at very reasonable rentals, considering the value given.

The Fall rush for desirable suites will soon be here. It's best to make your selection now while so many desirable apartments are available. Bear in mind, that:

TEUTON ALLIES BOMBARD NOVO GEORGIEVSK

has been stated that Kovno was to form the northern head of the new Russian line of Kovno, Grodno and Brest-Litovsk. The city has a population of between 75,000 and 100,000.

Actually the new Russian line extends north of Kovno in a semi-circle through Vilna, Svenziany, N. Alexandrovsk and Dunaburg along the River Duna to a point just west of Riga, the big Russian Baltic seaport. At the other end of the lines runs southeasterly through Brest-Litovsk.

Novo Georgievsk, which lies upon the Vistula about twenty miles northwest of Warsaw, is not a city, but a big entrenched camp, guarded by powerful forts of modern construction.

It was one of the natural strongholds discovered by Napoleon in 1807, and as long as the Russians hold it the Germans will be unable to use the Vistula River and the railway lines running south from Soldau for the transportation of supplies.

The forts at Novo Georgievsk are situated on both sides of the Narew River at the point where it flows into the Vistula. The fortress has two powerful citadels, eight bridgehead positions and twenty-four redoubts, containing batteries of 10, 11 and 12-inch guns.

General von Buelow's army is still driving against the Russian forces defending the Warsaw-Petrograd railway in Courland and also is menacing the situation become south of Shavli and northwest of Vilnar that the Russians are reported to be evacuating Kovno on the Vilna-Libau railway line.

GERMANS ADVANCE.

Immediately west of the Bug River in the southeastern theatre of war, the German forces of the command of Field Marshal von Mackenzen have reached Siwie.

Only meagre dispatches have come through from the front bearing upon the situation in the immediate sector of Warsaw, but it is believed that the grand army of Russia has already retreated a considerable distance eastward from Pragra, to which point it retired when Warsaw was given up.

It is expected that Prince Leopold of Bavaria, whose troops entered Warsaw, will be made German military Governor of the Polish capital, and that he will thereupon issue a proclamation granting extensive political rights to the Poles.

RUSSIANS HOLD FOE AT BAY IN ATTEMPTS TO CROSS VISTULA

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 7.—Grand Duke Nicholas' retreating hosts are still holding the Austro-German forces at bay in Poland despite the fall of Ivangorod and Warsaw. The destruction of the bridges over the Vistula prevented rapid advance by the Teuton over that stream, and large rearguard forces left on the east bank have thus far prevented the construction of pontoons in any number.

Latest advices received at the War Office state that five attempts by the Germans to bridge the Vistula with pontoons north of Ivangorod Thursday night met with failure. The Russian machine guns on the east bank poured a deadly hail upon the German engineering forces engaged in the work and they finally forced an abandonment of the task.

While the Russians are being extricated from the carefully planned trap with which Germany and Austria hoped to win a complete victory in the eastern theatre, the work of establishing great munitions factories is proceeding throughout the interior of Russia.

All Russia knows that it faces an enormous task. Only by long and arduous work will the empire be able to equip its forces for a renewal of the conflict under favorable conditions.

One of the Russian characteristics is the ability to rally to an adversity. This has never been evidenced more strongly than at the present time.

Thaw Repairs Aero Under German Fire

By International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—William Thaw, pilot in the French Aviation Corps, was forced recently to descend twenty-five miles fnside hostile lines. A German patrol sighted him, said before the motor could be repaired attacked Thaw and the observer. While the latter held the Germans at bay with a machine gun of the airship Thaw repaired his motor, and the pair flew back into the French lines.

No Hunchbacks in Future, Says Doctor

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 7.—The world is to be rid of hunchbacks, according to Dr. Harry W. Forbes of Los Angeles, speaker at the closing session of the international osteopathic convention. He said:

"The hunchback will soon be a curiosity of medical history, because osteopathic treatment, with proper support, for persons with bone tuberculosis means a straight spine."

Fall of Warsaw Most Serious Loss to Allies, British Experts' View

London, August 7.

THE following comments on the fall of Warsaw were contributed to the Boston AMERICAN today:

By Sir Gilbert Parker,
Noted Author and Novelist.

It would be folly not to recognize the seriousness of the fall of Warsaw. By it Germany gains command of certain Russian railways, and for a time probably will have more men to throw across to the western front, but it will not affect us save to increase and stimulate British determination, and it certainly will increase British energy.

It is one more call to our people for the full use of all our resources, which they will not fail to give to the utmost.

By Gilbert K. Chesterton,
Author and Essayist.

The fall of Warsaw inspires no sentiment but the belief that the Russian army is again saved. There was much more cause for nervousness during the Russian occupation.

By Sir Hiram Maxim, Famous Inventor.

The principal effect of the fall of Warsaw will be to wake up the great Russian nation to new and greater efforts. As they are sure to strike hard in the immediate future, Germany will be unable to detail many troops for the west.

By Maj.-Gen. Sir Alfred Turner,
British Military Expert.

Warsaw's fall—Germany's triumph after all her failures—cannot avert her final, complete overthrow. The Russian army and winter will destroy the Germans in the east. She may send great masses to the west, but all is as ready for their defeat there as during the past year.

By Captain Granville Fortescue,
Former Military Aide to President Roosevelt.

Warsaw is a serious loss to the allies. Strategically and politically the Polish capital is of paramount consequence. Tactically the operations culminating in its fall seem to prove the employment of large numbers of heavy calibre guns in column formation to be the solution of the trench warfare problem.

By Captain Cecil Battine,
Author of "The Crisis of the Confederacy."

The successful advance of all the German armies which executed the great converging attack was a feat of strategy for which there are few parallels in the world's military history. Perhaps the nearest resemblance from war in the past is furnished by the Anaconda scheme of throttling the Confederate States conceived by General McClellan and executed by General Grant.

The first certain result of the German triumph is the enormous impetus to the German people and its troops, and at the same time the powerful spell cast over the hesitating neutral States in the Balkans.

It is evident the Russian offensive against the Germanic empires has been postponed many months. Meanwhile Britain, France and Italy have fine armies afoot and may at any moment combine for a grand attack on the comparatively thin forces which guard the long Germanic fronts.

DETAIN MAN IN AUTO MYSTERY; GIRL DYING

Bank Note Company, No. 77 North Washington street.

Mr. Cunningham is being detained by the police pending an investigation. After he took Miss Driscoll to the hospital he said:

"Miss Driscoll and I went to Nantasket last night to visit some friends. We could not find them so we started home in the automobile.

"While passing through Hingham, Miss Driscoll said she wanted to alight. As she stepped from the car she fell, striking on her head. She returned to the car apparently uninjured.

"While passing through Quincy square I noticed she was bleeding from the ears. I put on full speed for Boston, but before I got to the city she was unconscious."

Austrians Taking Over Polish Cities

By International News Service.

VIENNA, via Amsterdam, Aug. 7.—Austrian administration is being established in the cities of Southern Poland as rapidly as possible. The affairs of Lublin are now being administered by Austrian officials, whose arrival is usually enthusiastically greeted by the Poles.

Archduke Joseph Ferdinand arrived at Lublin Thursday morning.

Shoot Leaders in German Mutiny

HAVRE, France, Aug. 7.—Mutinies have broken out in the German garrison at Liege, Ghent and Bruges, says a dispatch to the Belgian government today and many ringleaders have been shot. In some instances troops refused to obey orders when their officers tried to send them to the front.

Wilson's Son-in-Law Takes Out Passport

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—One of the first Americans to be affected by Canada's new regulations that all Americans visiting there must have passports is no other than Francis B. Sayre, son-in-law of President Wilson. Sayre visits Newfoundland every year. As he prepared to start this Summer he learned of Canada's new order and applied for a passport, which was issued to him, it was learned today.

VILLA READY TO QUIT; TO MEET GEN. SCOTT

By International News Service.

EL PASO, Aug. 7—I am absolutely willing to allow any suggestions offered by President Wilson and the A, B, C delegates which promise to bring about early peace in Mexico. If needs be, I will resign, as I said before, but General Carranza has to quit, too.

I am glad that General Scott arrives here next Monday. I shall wait for him and will be ready to listen to any suggestions he may have to make in regard to the controversy my government is having with American mining men and merchants in the State of Chihuahua.

I am sure all differences will be settled by General Scott, the great peacemaker of your country.

(Signed) FRANCISCO VILLA,
General-in-Chief.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The administration is intensely disappointed over the result to date of its Mexican conferences. Instead of finding that the Latin-Americans were willing to go the limit in supporting the plans for concerted action, Secretary Lansing was forced to report to the President that many of them believed the Mexican people should be permitted to settle their own affairs.

So far as armed intervention by a joint force was concerned the United States has been told none of the Latin-American countries would favor it. They believe that if the United States wants to use arms to settle the difficulties in Mexico it should do it on its own initiative.

NO DATE FOR CONFERENCE.

No date had been set for a resumption of the conferences in New York. Secretary Lansing said he hoped they could get together by the middle of the week, but that will be contingent upon the rapidity with which some of the South Americans receive instructions from their home capitals. All approved the plan for another appeal—this time a joint one—to the Mexicans to get together in the interest of peace, but so far as further action was concerned the majority of the ambassadors and ministers were without authority to act.

Meanwhile Secretary Lansing will prepare the new appeal. It is to be couched in stronger language than was the original plea of President Wilson. The plan is to have it circulated generally throughout Mexico and to serve copies on Carranza, Villa and Zapata. This appeal will point out that Mexico's right to settle her own troubles is recognized, but it will also be stated that in the interests of friendship the "sister republics" feel constrained to demand that this settlement take place at once.

ARMS EMBARGO OPPOSED.

Three of the conferees very frankly warned Secretary Lansing that laying an embargo on arms might prove a serious mater. They asked him what the position of the United States would be in the event that an arms embargo was enforced against everyone except the de facto government. It was planned to recognize and then Carranza, with the material at his disposal, wiped out the recognized government. This was one of the matters that went over for further consideration.

With General Scott on the border and artillery massed at strategic points, the United States is expected to be in a better position than ever to impress upon the factions the necessity of getting together.

Scott can handle Villa at all times and he is the fighting type that the Carranza generals admire. Because of this there will be no surprise should Scott be commissioned to begin a mediation mission. That is what he himself wants to do and he has so told Secretary Lansing.

The reason for Scott's departure for the border, it was pointed out, was to be found in a communication that Carranza had sent Secretary Lansing. Carranza was quoted as saying:

"They've been bothering me when Villa or the commanders acting under him could not have obtained a conference with Obregon or our other generals in a military way."

Officials take this to mean that Carranza was willing to confer with Villa concerning an arrangement for Mexico's common good.

Dispatches from El Paso, Tex., today say Villa has delayed his departure from Juarez for Torreon to await the arrival of General Scott.

Allies Blocked by Stand of Greece

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Efforts of the allies to buy Bulgaria's neutrality have been balked by Greece. A delegation of Macedonian deputies called upon Premier Gounaris, of Greece, in Athens, and asked that compensation be pledged to Bulgaria in order to prevent her from joining the war on the side of Germany.

"Greece will not cede one inch of territory to Bulgaria," was the substance of the premier's reply.

12 CANADIANS WIN VICTORIA CROSSES

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Twelve Canadian, all non-commissioned officers, receive the Victoria Cross for conspicuous valor on the field of battle, according to the Official Gazette.

They are Corporal A. H. Ritchie, Gunner H. E. Wilkinson and J. W. A. Donaldson of the First Brigade Canadian Artillery; Sergeant J. R. Milburn, Corporal R. F. Baker, Gunner A. W. James and G. C. Olsen of the Second Brigade; E. J. Busby, G. Inkster, Sergeants W. J. Jordan, L. Scott and Corporal D. Stevens of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

The Gazette sets forth the feats of bravery for which the men are decorated. Baker, on April 22 and 23, after the teams of three ammunition wagons had been killed, collected details of men and kept up the supply of ammunition.

Busby, on May 8 at Hooge, when he assisted the wounded from a trench attempted to rescue a partially buried man, having at the same time to keep at bay two Germans who were trying to bayonet him. He had previously made two journeys to the reserves to bring up ammunition, all the time under a heavy fire.

Donaldson, at Saint Julien on April 22, and also near Ypres, kept his battery supplied with ammunition under a heavy shell fire—"a fine example of courage and devotion to duty," says the Gazette.

Inkster, on May 8 at Hooge, stationed himself alone at the end of a communicating trench and shot several of the enemy who attempted to enter. He also carried important messages under fire and "he was always willing to undertake any dangerous work," says the Gazette.

James, at Wieltje, repaired telephone wires under a heavy shell and rifle fire and continued after he was wounded. Jordan, on May 3 at Hooge Chateau, was left in a trench with only one man. He held it, accounting for a large number of the enemy. Milburn, at Wieltje on April 24, brought up ammunition and saved a wagon after the drivers and horses had been killed, all under a heavy shell fire.

Olsen, "with great gallantry and resource," from April 22 to May 4 repaired telephone wires under a heavy shell fire. Also as a scout he obtained valuable information when the wires were cut.

Ritchie, on April 22 and 23 at Ypres, during the retirement, returned under a heavy shell fire to free the men and horses of a disabled wagon. He carried a wounded man out of the firing line. Scott, on May 8, at Hooge, after his officer had been killed, collected a party of men and succeeded in holding a trench in spite of a very heavy attack.

Stevens on the same day, at the Hooge Chateau, after a trench had been abandoned, remained and worked a machine gun until it was put out of action, when he rejoined his unit under a very heavy fire. Wilkinson, at Ypres on May 8 and 9, kept up phone communications with brigade headquarters until the time exposed to a heavy shell and rifle fire.

TROLLEY STRIKE TIES UP CARS IN HOLYOKE

HOLYOKE, Aug. 7.—A conference was held today before Commissioner Wood of the State Board of Arbitration between the trolley men's union and officials of the company, in an effort to settle the strike.

Practically every man, including power house employes, quit work early today. The number estimated to be on strike is 250. Not a wheel turned in Holyoke, Amherst or Hadley Falls, when it came time for the mill employes to start for work.

The company did not attempt to run any cars.

The men's demands are primarily A nine-in-eleven-hour schedule, wage scale, of $2.50 minimum and maximum of $2.80 to be reached in the fourth year, and day time, instead of hour time.

Denies Germany in Plot with Huerta

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Secretary of State Lansing today announced that Count Von Bernstorff, ambassador from Germany, had handed him a formal denial of charges printed in the Providence Journal that a conspiracy existed between Victoriano Huerta and German agents in this country. The Journal story said German agents were backing Huerta in a move aimed to embroil the United States in Mexico.

U-BOATS SINK 8 CRAFT; CREW OF ONE MISSING

By International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Six English fishing boats and two neutral vessels have fallen victims to German submarines within the last twelve hours. The fishing boats were sunk early today. The neutral ships, the Danish schooner Hanseniil and the Norwegian steamer Vendus, were set on fire in the North Sea, last night.

The crews of the fishing boats were rescued and landed. The crew of the Hanseniil was put aboard the Danish ship Tyr, bound for Denmark.

The fate of the Vendus' crew is unknown. The ship was passed by the Swedish steamer Osterland, but no small boats or signs of life were seen.

he was likely to be the only one to suffer he weakened. Mr. Lavelle then pushed the investigation more vigorously. Yesterday afternoon the go-between went before the Grand Jury.

His story went only so far as to implicate one member of the Council. He said he received $250 from the three junkmen and paid $175 to this one member, retaining $25 for his end of the graft.

BEFORE GRAND JURY.

It was intimated that the money was paid over in the house of this councilman and later in the day this member also went before the Grand Jury.

The Councilman says he received $175 from the go-between and divided it in his own house with four others, each receiving $35.

The five members constituted a majority of the Council, and so were able to vote licenses or reject applications as they saw fit.

Of the indicted men, Gordon is the foreman of a cleaning company, and was elected to the City Council at large. Mendonsa is a cigar packer and represents Ward 2 in the council. Sullivan is a chemist and represents Ward 5; Daileil is a collector for an express company and represents Ward 1. "The Story of Susan Lenox, Her Fall and Rise"

"And Jesus said unto her, Neither do I condemn thee; go and sin no more"

"Go back home and wait" was the advice of the friendly drug clerk. Home! Had she not run away because home was unbearable?

Susan was courageously faring forth upon the stern city with no experience, no equipment to withstand its cruel, grasping greed. But here, at least, she could hold her head up. Here the dread secret of her birth was safe.

Susan's brain was still numb with the shock of a terrible awakening. The very essentials of existence had been torn from her. No, she could not,—would not—go back where they all looked down on her and pitied her.

Little did she realize that hers was to be the unequal struggle of innocent illegitimacy against unscrupulous legitimacy; that she was yet to learn society's bitter paradox, "The woman has to take all the blame."

MISS MARLOWE WANTS HOME AND REST

By RUTH M. BYERS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—"I am not retiring from the stage because I am ill. That is absurd. I never felt wetter or stronger in my life. I am simply leaving the stage because there are so many other things in this world I'd rather do. All my life I've lived in a mimic world, now I'm hungry for the real world, full of genuine friendly people, who will talk with me of their homes and small worries and not speak to me the lines some master wrote hundreds of years before I was born. I want to live life—not act it."

Thus did Julia Marlowe today deny the persistent rumor that illhealth was forcing her retirement from the stage at this time when her star of fame and power is at its zenith.

Julia Marlowe is retiring in her prime.

An incredulous world will not believe it. But as I saw the happiness in Miss Marlowe's face, mirrored in those wonderful dark eyes of hers, that seemed to have caught a new youthfulness, I knew that she meant every word she said. Julia Marlowe will never act again, simply because the stage holds no further attraction for her.

SEEING NEW WORLD.

We were talking of the announcement Miss Marlowe has just made in the den of the actress' beautiful Summer home in the Berkshires, in Litchfield, Ct.

"I feel as though I were seeing a new world, with the unaccustomed eyes of one who has been in a far distant land," she declared.

"I want to enter into the things other women have been doing all these years. I have been giving my life to the theatre. Oh, I have it all planned out as you shall see.

"First of all I am going to have my home."

That statement was typically Sothern. Home has always meant everything to these two stars of the stage, and E. H. Sothern, sitting on a tree chair near by her, nodded his emphatic approval.

"Do you know what home is to mean to you now?" I asked, as a serious wistfulness in Miss Marlowe's voice. "It's going to be something stationary. It isn't going to be one hotel that grind and get on my nerves. It can't be shunted up side tracks. My home is going to be far from hallboys and menu cards. How sick I am of all that sort of thing.

HOME MEANS REST.

"I want my books and my great open fireplace; a couple of dogs, a few good servants, my friends, my peace. I have earned a rest. That's what my home shall be—my rest.

"The last time Mr. Sothern and I were on tour we lived in thirty different houses in one season trying to keep up a pretence of a home.

"Only a very strong woman could keep up a repertoire such as mine and retain her health," she said. "And I am not willing to pay the price. I am so well now that I want always to enjoy life with the same unhampered joy I have put into my work. I shall travel leisurely, with long stops—not one-night stands. I shall live a month hours at a time."

Miss Marlowe smiled whimsically. "That's just what it will mean. Reading hours at a time, until I catch up with all the books and plays I have missed while I worked. I want to live much out of doors. Woman's club life interests me, and perhaps I shall spend some time with suffrage."

GIVES BEAUTY SECRET.

Julia Marlowe grows more beautiful, yes, and younger looking, every day. It would have been beyond feminine powers not to have had the least bit of curiosity as to the secret of "how she did it."

"I am glad you are flattering me now." Miss Marlowe laughed at the question. "But if you really want a serious answer, I should say that simplicity is the real secret of all beauty.

"Simple living, simple desires and simple clothes—these are the things that make pretty women.

"Next comes worry—or, rather, its elimination. Women who do not worry never have crows feet around their eyes and seldom get on speaking terms with wrinkles.

"And lastly, but best of all—be happy if you would be beautiful."

MORGAN CARRIES HIS OWN BAGGAGE ON HONEYMOON

Junius Spencer Morgan, scion of the "House of Morgan," and his bride, who was Miss Louise Converse of Dedham, landing from the steamer Kroonland at San Francisco. After a short stay at the Fair they will return to New York, where Mr. Morgan has a home waiting for his bride.

CAN'T DRAW ONE PENNY FOR 30 MILLION BRIDE

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Although Howard Spaulding, Jr., has taken to himself a $30,000,000 bride, he cannot collect one cent of her income—even if she should give him a written order for it or make out an assignment in his favor. It is so nominated in the bond. He may, however, come into possession of the entire estate through the last will and testament of his wife.

Such are the provisions of the trust agreement entered into by John H. Barker, the wealthy cat manufacturer, and the First Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago on December 1, 1910, three days before Mr. Barker's death. The bank is the second party to the agreement. It is as president of the bank, it appears, that James B. Forgan became the guardian of the daughter, Catherine, who now is Mrs. Howard Spaulding, Jr.

It is declared to be as clear as language can make it that Mr. Barker intended that his daughter should have the bulk of his vast estate and threw about the trust every possible safeguard to insure payment to her. No limitation of any kind is placed on the disposition of the property after it passes into her possession.

Valued at $30,000,000 at the time the trust agreement was made, it is estimated the estate will have reached $40,000,000 when Mrs. Spaulding becomes twenty-five years old—seven years hence. At 5 per cent. the annual income will be $2,000,000, and Mrs. Spaulding then will be entitled to it all, except the small amount required to pay annuities established by her father.

The trust deed was found among the inheritance tax papers of the estate in the Probate Court here. Unsuccessful searches had been made among the files in Laporte, Ind., and in Pottawatomie, Mich., where the Barker homes are.

Wennerberg to Speak.

F. W. Wennerberg will speak on the Common, under the auspices of the Woman's Peace Party, tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock, on "Pan-American Conference and Peace," at Tree 11 north.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 7.—Junius Spencer Morgan, grandson of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, and son of J. P. Morgan, present head of the Morgan banking house, has arrived here with his bride, formerly Miss Louise Converse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Converse, of Dedham, Mass., on the last lap of their honeymoon. June 15 was their wedding day.

It is the couple's intention to spend a few days visiting the Fair and enjoying the gay life of the "Exposition City."

"Silent" Morgan—as he was known in his Harvard days—arrived here with his bride on the steamer Kroonland, now in th. Atlantic-Pacific transportation service. Throughout the voyage young Morgan's popularity was shared by his beautiful and talented bride.

When the Kroonland docked, young Morgan, with characteristic democracy, seized a suit case in e ther hand and personally lugged it ashore, to the ill-concealed dismay of the closely-hovering porters. The bride followed at his heels carrying their umbrellas and smaller bundles herself.

Straight off the pier, past a line of gaping taxi-drivers, and up through the crowded city streets, they went, seemingly enjoying themselves to the limit.

It was not until they had reached their hotel that young Morgan surrendered those suit cases to a bell boy and, smiling satisfaction, wiped his perspiring brow.

WOMAN SHRIEKS IN AUTO; OFFICER HURT IN CHASE

Mounted Officer William C. Leary is in a serious condition at the hospital here, as a result of being thrown from his horse while trying to aid a woman crying for help from a rapidly moving automobile in the Fenway early today.

The mystery of the auto and the woman's cries is occupying the attention of the police who are using every effort to solve the mystery. The police of Worcester, Springfield, Brookline and many other surrounding places as far west as Springfield have been notified to keep a sharp lookout for the automobile which bore a yellow New York license plate.

Officer Leary was near the corner of Audubon road and Beacon street when an automobile approached at full speed. He was about to warn the driver to slow down when he was startled to hear a woman's shrieks from under the hood.

The woman was crying "Help! Help!"

The auto did not stop and the officer put spurs to his horse and gave pursuit. He had gone only a few feet when his horse stumbled and fell, throwing Leary heavily to the ground.

Meanwhile people of the neighborhood heard the cries for help and several notified police headquarters by telephone. A squad of officers was hurried to the scene. Leary was found in the road. But there was no trace of the auto.

Machado President of the Portuguese

By International News Service.

LISBON, Aug. 7.—Berandino Machado, former premier, today took the oath as President of Portugal. MRS. BOWNE IS DENIED RIGHT TO SEE SON

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Justice Kelly in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, has dismissed habeas corpus proceedings brought by Mrs. Adele Taylor Bowne of Manhattan to obtain formal possession of her son by a previous marriage, John P. Manning, Jr., who is now in the custody of his paternal grandfather, Henry S. Manning. Mrs. Bowne was divorced from her first husband, John P. Manning, in 1913, and the following February she and Walter Bowne, who was named by her first husband, were married.

On the stand Mrs. Bowne admitted she left Manning in 1912 while she was living with him at Flushing, L. I. While in Manhattan, she said, she met Mr. Bowne, her present husband, by chance. She said they went to the Martinique Hotel for luncheon, where Mr. Manning appeared and made a scene.

"Did you return to your husband?" Justice Kelly asked.

"No," she replied "I did not, because I was afraid he would resort to physical violence and possibly injure me. I swear upon my word of honor that I had no intention of leaving him when I left home, but his conduct at the hotel made it imperative."

Mrs. Bowne told of meeting her son one day at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, when she ran up to him and threw her arms around him, hugging and kissing him. A nurse maid intervened, she said, and took the child away.

ROME, Aug. 7.—The Consistorial Congregation has adjourned until November without appointing a successor to the late Archbishop Quigley of Chicago.

WOMAN ROBBED IN BACK BAY AT DOOR OF HOME

Mrs. Alice B. Stevens of No. 29 Hemenway street was attacked at the doorway of her apartment early in the day and robbed of a handbag containing $200 in cash and $150 in checks.

Another during holdup occurred at the corner of High and Congress streets, where Fred Anderson, a yachtsman from the steam yacht Christina, was beaten by three men and robbed of $40.

Mrs. Stevens was robbed by a young man who apparently followed her home. She did not notice him until as she stopped to fumble for her key he suddenly stepped up beside her, caught her arm, wrenched the handbag from her hand and ran.

She describes him as five feet, six inches tall and weighing about 140 pounds. He ran in the direction of the Fenway, she told the police.

After the robbery, Mrs. Stevens became hysterical and screamed. A call was sent for the police, and a wagon load of officers was rushed to the scene. They were unable to locate the robber.

Anderson, who was robbed on High street, told the police that he pulled out his roll of bills in an Atlantic-avenue barroom, and that when he left there, he was followed by three men who eventually attacked him, beating him over the head with sticks wrapped in newspapers.

A street cleaner, he said, started to help him and then changed his mind.

Brockton Man On Way to Marry on Torpedoed Ship

BROCKTON, Aug. 7.—Hugo Tillman, twenty-two, of No. 130 Pine street, was a passenger on the Norwegian steamer Trondhjemsfiord, sunk in the North Sea by a German submarine, July 31. Although no announcement was made that all on the vessel were saved, his relatives here have received no word from him and fear the report was incorrect.

Tillman was on his way to Sweden to marry Miss Whalberg Hansen. He is a tailor here. The survivors were landed at Copenhagen August 2.

Bay State Men Get Embargo on Hides Modified

The export embargo on hides and skins consigned from India to the United States has been modified through the efforts of the New England Shoe and Leather Association and United States Senators Lodge and Weeks, according to announcement just made.

The British consuls at American ports, as a result, have been notified by their home government that they have full authority to table guarantees of consignees of Indian hides and skins, as required by the new regulations.

These guarantees are to be in the form of affidavits setting forth that the importers of such hides and skins will not re-export any part of them.

The cables will be sent to London at the expense of the importers and will be forwarded from there to the appropriate collector of customs in India, who will then permit the shipments to go forward to their destination.

Sons Appeal Will of Mother Who Was a Suicide

Frank W. Osborne of Salem and Frederick I. Osborne of San Francisco, have filed an appeal in the Supreme Court against the allowance of the will of their mother, Mary A. Osborne of Brookline, who committed suicide on December 14, 1914.

The claim of the sons is that their mother was of unsound mind and was under undue influence exercised by Eugene I. Lindsay of No. 64 Middlesex avenue, Swampscott, executor of the will and beneficiary to the extent of $2,000.

The will provided that the sons were to share the household effects in the house occupied by Mrs. Osborne at No. 1021 Commonwealth avenue. All the remainder of the estate was to be held in trust, the income being divided equally between the sons while they lived, going then to charity.

STUBBORN? NO! WILL WAIT TO MARRY

Friends of Miss Mildred Littlefield, nineteen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Littlefield, of Walnut street, Watertown, formerly a student at the New England Conservatory of Music, are wondering today when she will cease to be plain "Miss" Littlefield and become—yours, brushingly, Mrs. Roy T. Eldridge.

Speculation along this line follows the girl's acquittal in the Waltham District Court on a charge of stubbornness.

The girl was in court on complaint of her mother. The latter made complaint after learning that her daughter and Eldridge, who is twenty-two and a former boarder at the Littlefield home, had recently taken out a marriage license against her wishes.

With the dismissal of the case the young people, both of whom had openly declared on the witness stand their intention to marry, the opposition of the girl's mother notwithstanding, left the court arm in arm.

Outside they boarded a jitney-bus and sped toward Boston. Just as the car shot away young Eldridge held up a group of reporters that the troublemaking marriage license was still safely in his pocket. But the young people promised the Court to wait six months.

Miss Littlefield is prominent in the city's church and social life. She is pianist at St. John's Methodist Church and a leader in the Sunday school. Young Eldridge is owner of a poultry business. The young people became acquainted when Eldridge started boarding at the Littlefield home. He left there a month ago after Miss Littlefield says she found him "nagging" her daughter.

ITALY INVADED BY TROOPS OF AUSTRIA

By STEVES BURNETT,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

VIENNA (via Berlin and Amsterdam), Aug. 7.—Austrian troops have invaded Italy and captured important positions near Mount Peralba, south of the Drave River, the War Office announced today.

This is the chief feature of a review of military operations on the Italian front which also declares that the attacks of the Italian troops on Doberdo plateau have been repulsed with severe losses for the enemy.

The Italian positions near Mount Peralba were taken in a surprise attack at night. The Italian defenders attempted to escape, but were cut off by the flanking force and compelled to surrender.

The review praises the bravery shown by the Italians in their efforts to carry Doberdo plateau and open the way to Gorizia.

"Time after time the enemy charged our front in vain," it says. "His troops were mowed down by the Austro-Hungarian artillery. The Italian losses on Doberdo plateau have been terrible."

ITALIAN GUNS COMMAND GORIZIA; HEIGHTS STORMED

By ANDRE BEAUMONT.
Boston American and London Times Exclusive Cable Service.

MILAN, Aug. 7.—Pressure by the left wing and centre on the Carso Heights continues, and new important positions have been taken after severe fighting.

The Austrians tried to arrest the Italian progress by a violent attack on the position recently conquered in the Bosco Cappuccio, but the shock was met successfully. After the Austrians had been weakened, a vigorous offensive was taken, with the result that the great trench in the eastern extremity of the Cappuccio Woods was carried.

BREACH MADE IN LINE.

The Austrians were driven a considerable distance behind the lines they had occupied before their attack.

An attempt was made later by the Austrians to dislodge the Italians from their new positions by a furious bombardment and an attack en masse. It failed, and when the action was over the Italians were firmly established on new lines.

A dispatch from Turin says the Italians are now masters of the summit of Monte Michel, which dominates Gorizia, and that the fall of the city is imminent. This is said to be admitted from Austrian sources.

The Prince Archbishop has been obliged to leave Gorizia and retire to Adelsberg, because within the last few days the Archbishop's palace and residens have been subjected to heavy fire by Italian guns, the Provincial Council also left a few days ago.

AUSTRIANS DRIVEN BACK.

The Dolomite region again was the scene of progress by the Alpini troops, who succeeded in occupying new positions near the summit of Col Di Lana. This mountain is quite isolated and is west of Dolomite road, between the Falzarego Pieve Passes, and is a strong point in the defence of Arabba and Pordoi Pass.

The occupation of the mountain will form the first breach in the line of fortifications protecting the eastern front of Trentino. From Col Di Lana it will be possible to bombard the fortifications of Trani Sassi, Sasso D'Istria and Seste Sassi, three formidable defences of the Falzarego region.

ITALY WINNER OF ITS FIRST DUEL OF WAR IN AIR

By BRITON DALLAIRE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, Aug. 7.—Details of the first air duel between an Italian dirigible balloon and an Austrian aeroplane were received here today and they reflect high credit upon the boldness and efficiency of the Italian airmen.

The Italian airship had successfully bombarded the Austrian railway junction at Opcina, three miles northeast of Trieste, and was on its way home when attacked by an Austrian plane of the hydro type. The battle occurred over the Adriatic Sea, 4,500 feet in the air.

While the attack at Opcina was in progress signals were sent to a hydroaeroplane that was patrolling Tiebe harbor. The aeroplane started toward Opcina, but in the meantime the dirigible had set off westward and as Opcina is only two miles inland was soon over the waters of the Adriatic. Mounting to a height of 5,000 feet, the Austrian aviator began showering incendiary bombs, attempting to set the airship on fire. All the bombs missed their mark and in the meantime the crew of the dirigible began firing with rifles and a machine gun. The aeroplane circled overhead, dropping lower and lower, the aviator firing from a magazine rifle in an effort to puncture the gas bag of the dirigible, but the Italian guns pierced the pontoons and wings of the aeroplane and one is believed to have wounded the aviator.

Finally the Austrian machine turned toward the east and dashed off toward the Austrian coast line.

Il Papa per la pace. Le artigliere italiane dominano Gorizia.

Monfalcone Minacciata

Londra. — Da telegramma da Torino ad un giornale locale dice che gli Italiani riescono a mantenere la conquista di Monfalcone stante la continua lotta che sostengono contro i nemici. Gli austriaci hanno delle batterie da 12 inches sul monte Quecseto che domina Monfalcone, e gli italiani non han potuto ancora distrurre tali batterie nemiche. Gli scalli del porto, molti pubblici palazzi hanno sofferto dal bombardamento austriaco.

I tentativi degli austriaci che vengono dal sud-est della città per scacciare gli Italiani da Monfalcone, sono stati tutti frustrati e gli attaccanti hanno subito gravi perdite.

SULLE CARNICHE.

Gli assalti contro Monte Mediatta e Monte Quesalta, all'est di Monte Croce sulle Carniche, sono stati distrutti per gli austriaci.

LA CADUTA DI GORIZIA IMMINENTE.

Parigi, 7 Agosto — Un telegramma da Torino annunzia che gli Italiani hanno catturato la sommità del monte Michele, che domina Gorizia, e che quindi, la caduta di detta città è imminente.

ROMA, 6 agosto.—Il Corriere d'Italia dice oggi: "Il Papa continua a lavorare per la pace che sara' giusta e deve rispettare i diritti delle nazioni. Egli non parla per questo o per quell altro popolo, non sara' nemmeno attaccato a sostener l'Italia; la Sua voce risuonera' quale una solenne ammonizione a coloro che volessero la pace senza aver riguardo alle giuste aspirazioni dei popoli oppressi."

Un alto prelato ha detto: L'intervento del Papa non e' prematuro. In ogni dove la guerra infanguina disce. L'avanzata germanesse in Polonia non ha valore. Tutti i belligerenti sono adulti, specialmente quelli che sembrano vittoriosi. Il Papa ha scelto bene il momento per avanzare la parola di pace che sara' seguita da altre piu' energiche ed efficaci.

MILANO, 5 Agosto.—Sulle alture del Carso, in prossimo delle truppe Italiane contro il nemico e' riuscita a far loro conquistare altre posizioni.

Gli austriaci cercarono di arrestare l'avanzata Italiana con degli attacchi vio-

Un' Areonave Presa a Pola

ROMA, 6 Agosto.—Il Governo Italiano annunzia oggi, che la notte scorsa, un dirigibile Italiano, dopo aver fatto cadere delle bombe su Pola su punti che erano stati bombardati in precedenza, per ragioni sconosciute cadde sul mare e tre ufficiali e tre uomini che vi stavan dentro furono fatti prigionieri.

CONQUISTANDO DOLOMITE.

Nella regione Dolomite gli Alpini hanno occupato delle nuove posizioni presso la sommita' di monte di Lana. Questa montagna e' quasi isolata e si eleva ad ovest della strada Dolomite tra i passi di Falzarego, ed e' una posizione forte sima per la difesa dei passi Araba e Pordoi.

L'occupazione della montagna spezzera' la linea di fortificazioni Austriache proteggenti la parte orientale della frontiera. Dal colle di Lana sara' possibile bombardare le fortificazioni di Tra i Sassi, Sasso d'Istria e Seste Sassi, tre formidabili difese della regione di Falzarego.

Who is he? You'll find him in Tomorrow's Boston Sunday American. Now that you put it up to us we must admit ourselves we don't know who he is, but he has served his purpose. He has attracted your eye, which was what we were aiming at, and now we invite you to read the announcement below of some of the good things which we are preparing for your entertainment and instruction in Tomorrow's edition of the Boston Sunday American.

GERMAN ATTACK GROWS FIERCE IN THE ARGONNE

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—Ever growing fierceness marks the new German offensive in the Argonne region.

The French War Office in an official communique today states that fighting of the most violent character is taking place in the Argonne.

Another German assault was launched against the French position at Hill 213, but it was repulsed.

The army of the German Crown Prince, which is attempting to isolate Verdun by cutting its lines of communications on the west, has been bombarding the French trenches with the utmost intensity, using guns of all calibre. The text of the communique follows:

"The night passed quietly on the western part of the front. There were reported only some grenade fighting around Souchez and artillery combats in the regions of Tracy-Le Val and Berry-Au-Bac.

"In the western part of the Argonne, a very fierce fight continues with pelting rain. An enemy attack was repulsed in the region of hill No. 213.

"In Lorraine, a strong German reconnaissance was broken up by our fire, near Leintrey.

"In the Vosges nothing has been reported."

Pope Will Take New Step to End the War

Boston American and London Daily Telegraph Exclusive Cable Service.

ROME, Aug. 7.—The Pope is about to make a step in favor of cessation of hostilities. The Cordiere D'Italia says today:

"The Pope continues to work for peace, but for a peace that shall be just and shall respect the rights of nations.

"He does not speak as an advocate of this or that people, or even as an advocate of the, Italian people; his voice should resound as a solemn admonition to all who today seek to impose a peace without having regard for the rights and just aspirations of oppressed people."

Serbia Reports Two Austrian Repulses

By International News Service.

NISH, Servia, Aug. 7.—Servian War Office issued the following official statement today:

"On the Danube front our artillery dispersed a supply convoy of the enemy between Vertsherovan and Orchava on Tuesday. We dispersed with our infantry fire a detachment of the enemy that was entrenching near Cheoubina. The enemy's artillery fired a few shells in the direction of the island of Zignalia, but did no damage."

100,000 Boxes of Apples for Dutch

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 7.—The largest contract of the season for the purchase of apples was closed today in Hood River Growers by O. Berghuis, the Dutch consul here. He bought 100,000 boxes at $1.50 a box. The apples will be shipped to Holland in October.

Gerard Probes Seizure of 2 American Ships

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Ambassador Gerard at Berlin has been ordered by the State Department to make an inquiry into the reported seizure of the American steamers Llama and Wico by Germany.

Both steamships were bound from America to Stockholm, laden with petroleum. The Germans have taken them into Swinemunde, according to press reports reaching this country. Petroleum is a contraband, and it is believed that German officials think the cargoes were eventually destined for the allies.

If the owners prove the cargoes were for neutrals it is believed Germany will release the ships at once.

Old Defender of Cup Broken Up to Aid Allies

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—The $200,000 old cup defender Columbia has been broken up here, her metal to be used in making shells for the allies.

The Columbia twice defended the America cup, defeating Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock I. and Shamrock II., after beating the Defender and the Constitution.

The Columbia was built in 1898 for a syndicate headed by the late J. P. Morgan.

Czar Will Employ Many War Refugees in Arms Factories

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Czar will employ many thousands of war refugees in the new Finland arms factories, it is announced today.

According to the plan of Prince Shcherbatoff, the Russian Minister of Trade and Commerce, employment bureaus will be opened in the important centres east of the evacuated zones to distribute hands where they are most needed.

A large plot of ground near Moscow has been assigned as sites for munities factories.

Predicts Russians Will Retake Warsaw

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The old popular song "Say Au Revoir, but Not Good-by" was recalled when Count Tchelitsky at a meeting of the Council of the Empire in Petrograd declared: "We bow before the divine will, but the greater our misfortune the more intense grow our resolution to wage the war to the end.

"We weep at the loss of the Polish capital, but Russia does not say good-by to Warsaw—merely au revoir."

Austrian Emperor Confined to Bed

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Exchange Telegraph Company's Amsterdam correspondent says Vienna reports Emperor Francis Joseph has had a severe chill and is confined to his bed in the Schoenbrunn Castle.

The condition of the Emperor, however, is said not to be alarming.

Bismarck's Statue Removed to Moscow

LONDON, Aug. 7.—A Daily News dispatch from Petrograd says that a statue of Bismarck, weighing 900 pounds was brought to Moscow on Wednesday. It was taken on the Kaiser's estate in East Prussia and since has been kept in the Baltic provinces.

TURKS ROLLING SLAVS BACK IN CAUCASUS

By LUDWIN VON KLEIN,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 7.—In the trans-Caucasus theatre of hostilities the Turks have advanced more than sixty miles, driving back the Russians, and are on the point of invading Russia again from the direction of Alaschgerd.

The capture of Alaschgerd was officially announced today. It is only forty miles from the Russian front.

At the Dardanelles front attacks of the allies, following the explosion of mines, were repulsed.

The official statement was issued by the Turkish War Office.

"Our right wing continues to gain ground on the trans-Caucasus front. We have occupied the whole of the Mudar valley and have occupied Alaschgerd, northeast of Kara Kafeer.

"On Wednesday night, on the Dardanelles front, the enemy exploded mines in front of the Scandinavian left and followed it up with attacks which were repulsed. We counted a large number of bodies."

WILLARD TELLS OF RING MEN OF PAST

By JESS WILLARD.

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All Rights Reserved.)

WITH the passing of Cribb and Spring, the prize ring seemed to take a tumble into the gutter. The gamblers got in and fakes commenced to be pulled off that disgusted people with the game.

Jem Ward, the title holder after Spring, was a pretty poor specimen of a champion. In one of his first fights with a man named Abbott he was guilty of the worst sort of double cross, laying down without getting a blow.

All bets were declared off and Ward was ruled out of the prize ring. For a year or more Jem earned a bare living by boxing at fairs, but finally got back into favor by begging and promises. He showed himself a top-notcher in two hard fights and in July, 1825, he was matched with Tom Cannon for a championship battle.

The bout took place under a broiling July sun and the terrific heat proved mighty hard on both men. But Ward had the science as well as the stamina and won in the tenth round. His knockout blow was a swing on the burr of the ear and it was half an hour before Cannon recovered consciousness.

Ward was really a light heavyweight, standing five feet ten, and never weighing more than 175 pounds. But he had a mule's kick in each hand and he was one of the most intelligent, best educated men that ever stepped into the ring.

In 1827 Ward met Peter Crawley, known to the fancy as "Young Rump Steak." None of the records put Peter down as champion yet he whipped Ward fair and square in eleven rounds. It was a furious battle and anybody's fight until Peter put a right to the stomach.

Peter retired after the fight. He made a public statement in which he said that he was after fame, not money, and that since he had plenty of both he begged leave to quit. This tossed the championship back to Ward again.

Jem defended it nobly against Jack Carter the Lancashire Lad, whipping the big fellow easily in seventeen rounds. But there was a dishonest streak in him that could not be kept down. His match with Simon Byrne, for the British championship, was a bold attempt at another fake.

The betting was 5 to 2 on Ward and over 14,000 people were gathered at Leicester to witness the battle. But the men were about to enter the ring when announced that he was in no condition to fight. Caught in his after lie, he finally muttered that he "couldn't win and would not lose."

The truth of the matter was that Ward meant to throw the fight, his friends having bet immense sums on Byrne. But just before the battle a certain desperate gambler came to him and said:

"I'm betting on you. You can win easily if you want to. You've got to get in that ring and lay down I'll stand to win $5,000."

No wonder Ward couldn't win or lose. He was barred from the ring again and left Milton. Two years before he got back. He was permitted to fight again on one condition that Byrne be the man. The men met in 1831 and Ward won easily in thirty-three rounds.

It was his last fight. Whatever may be said of Jem Ward's honesty, nothing can be said against his gameness. He was a champion who never dodged. This was one of the reasons why a 175-pounder ruled as champion of England, also why Jem Ward lived to be eighty years old.

James Burke, known as the "Deaf 'Un," was one of the most remarkable fighters that ever lived. Like Jem Ward he was a light heavyweight only, but, unlike Ward, he was not a man of any education. A poor lad and deaf from the beginning, he fought his way up against all sorts of odds.

There was never anyone to give Burke a hand, but a braver fighter never drew breath. It was his fancy to act half crazy at times, but he never lacked shrewdness in the ring. At the time of Ward's retirement the "Deaf 'Un" had fought thirty winning battles, nearly all of them against men who outweighed him thirty or forty pounds.

It was agreed that Burke and Simon Byrne should fight for Ward's title, but it was only after weeks of begging that the "Deaf 'Un" could get the necessary $500 for his backing.

Byrne was much the bigger man and for three hours and sixteen minutes the two men fought on even terms. Time after time it looked as though Burke could not last, but he never lost his grit and in the 99th round he knocked Byrne senseless.

Before this Byrne had killed a man by a blow—the first death in the prize ring. It was now Byrne's turn to die. He was taken from the ring in a stupor and never recovered consciousness. The trial resulted in a verdict of "Not Guilty," for the report of the doctors found that it was Byrne's heart that had given away.

The Irish champion, like many another, had never learned to say "No." Burke, the weaker man physically, but a sober man, was soon over his punishment and walking around. The giant's heart, weakened by whiskey, gave way under strain.

It was about this time that Jem Ward decided to come back, and Burke leaped forward to meet him. But Ward would fight for nothing less than $2,500, which was entirely out of the Deaf 'Un's reach.

"The championship," he said, "ain't all money. I be ready to fight any man for what blunt he can twinkle, and be he w'out money, I'll fight him for nothing."

Disappointed in a match, Burke set sail for America, where he met a big fighter named O'Connell. The battle took place on Hart's Island in 1837, and Burke won handily in ten rounds.

Returning to England, the Deaf 'Un found many challenges waiting for him. In his absence Bendigo and Caunt had come up, and the former was soon matched with the champion. In this fight, as in all of his others, poor Burke got the worst of it.

For years he had suffered with a rupture, and when he entered the ring he wore a truss, as was his habit. Bendigo insisted that the truss be taken off, and in spite of Burke's begging the referee made him do it.

From the start Burke was a beaten man. The loss of his truss weakened him as well as worried him and the tenth round saw his finish. Poor Deaf 'Un! He took to drinking after his defeat and died at thirty-five, another one to be buried in whiskey's graveyard of prize fighters.

Even had he been allowed to wear his truss, it is doubtful if he could have whipped Bendigo, for there's little question that this lad was the "class" of his day. He weighed only 166 pounds, but he was lightning fast and a tremendous puncher.

From what I can figure he was a fighter on the Fitzsimmons order. He won many of his first fights by faking grogginess and when his opponent rushed in, crashed over the knock-out. Before the championship battle with Burke, Bendigo had whipped Count Bradley, Looney and a bunch of lesser lights and his victory over the Deaf 'Un put him at the top of the heap.

In 1840, a year after the great battle, Bendigo met with an accident that nearly made him a cripple for life. Always a great fellow for fooling, he tried to imitate a steeplechase by turning a forward flip. He fell and broke his knee cap.

The title was taken up by Ben Caunt, who could do battle, two and weighed 220 pounds. Caunt, by the way, came over to the United States in 1841 and set an example for modern fighters by appearing in a flowery melodrama.

In 1845 the sporting world was shaken by the news that Bendigo was well again and would meet Caunt for the title. They met and it was the story of David and Goliath. Bendigo, working in and out like a flash, gave punishment without taking any.

He bewildered Caunt by his feinting, ducking and sidestepping and gave the fancy the greatest exhibition of boxing that had ever been seen. In the ninety-third round Caunt went down without a blow and the men left the ring in a daze to Bendigo.

The great Bendigo retired from the ring after whipping Tom Paddock in 1850. He was thirty-nine years old and his knee was stiff and he fought a bigger man, as usual, but the old speed and science were there.

When he quit the ring Bendigo took up preaching. He came of a deeply religious family, many of them ministers, so it wasn't such a violent change as it seems. Let it be said that he made as good in the pulpit as he did in the ring, preaching his hardest against vice and drink.

William Perry, the "Tipton Slasher," now crashed the title. The most that can be said of him is that he was the best of a lot of dubs. His chief fight was with Charles Freeman, the American giant, who was about the only man in those days who measured up to me. Freeman stood 6 feet 6 inches and weighed 250, and had plenty of courage. The New York lad whipped Perry fair and square and should have been made champion of the world. However, the title was held back and a sudden attack of galloping consumption carried Freeman off inside the year.

The Slasher held the title for six years, during which time he was a good man. In 1857 another David popped up and a real champion took charge of the ring in England.

Rudolph and Ragan Reach Next Stand

ST. LOUIS, August 7.—Pitchers Rudolph and Ragan of the Braves, reached here today, coming on from Chicago ahead of their playmates so as to be ready for the series with the Cardinals, which opens tomorrow.

The Braves get through in St. Louis next Wednesday and then move on to Philadelphia for a series which is bound to spell a whole lot.

Baseball Over the Wire.

HARTFORD, August 7.—The Brooklyn's have recalled Pitcher Hilliard from the Hartford (Colonial League) club. Outfielder Pat Chouinard has been turned with his two-day suspension, and Pitcher Bennett of New Haven, has been drafted.

LAWRENCE, August 7.—Outfielder Martin Becker of the Lowell (New England League) club has been sold to the New York Nationals, labelled for delivery September 1. Becker formerly played with Kalamazoo.

LAWRENCE, August 7.—President Joe Sullivan announces the suspension of Pitcher George Pennington for failure to report to the locals after being recalled from Fitchburg.

HOUSTON, Texas, August 7.—Third baseman McDonald of the Houston (Texas League) club, has been sold to Manager Mack of the Philadelphia Americans. He will report to Manager Mack August 20. The reported price is $2,000.

"THE RABBITS" COLUMN BY Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

CHICAGO, August 7.—The reopening of a raid by the Federals on clubs in organized baseball gives room for wonder if there will be any more cases like that of Armando Marsans, the Cuban outfielder who jumped the Cincinnati Reds to the St. Louis Federals last season.

* * *

Marsans has not played a lick of baseball since a year ago last June, when he made the leap. He was enjoined from playing with St. Louis and his case was continued in court.

* * *

But Marsans' salary goes on just the same. If the court finally awards him to St. Louis, that club will have to pay him. The Reds were compelled to put up a bond of $1,500 to cover his salary, and the Reds will have to pay it if he is awarded to Cincinnati.

* * *

Marsans is at his home in Havana, Cuba, running his cigar factory. In the meantime the Reds are in last place and the St. Louis Feds are losing games through lack of the hitting punch Marsans would give them.

Marsans was a big favorite with Cincinnati and he would pack the park if he was to appear there now.

* * *

Marsans is allowed to loaf at a salary in the neighborhood of $4,000 a year. When the Feds opened their raids in the Winter of 1914 the Reds sent a man all the way to Cuba to sign Marsans and he was allowed to name his own figures. He said when he jumped that he signed with the St. Louis Feds for $15,000 for three seasons.

The Marsans case is easily the joke of baseball, and the joke is on the fellows who will have to pay his salary.

* * *

Base ball play in the major and minor leagues this season has been productive of a number of unusual performances, some of which have established records or supplanted those existing for some years. The season is almost every department of the game full of the rule of averages hitting up, 1915 is likely to be remembered as the year of odd features.

* * *

Extraordinary features include twenty bases on balls by Pitcher Harry Harper, in a game between Minneapolis and St. Paul of the American Association; the winning of two games in one day by Pitcher Mellinger of Cedar Rapids team of the Central Association, who allowed fifteen hits and two runs in twenty-four innings against Marshalltown; a twenty-two inning scoreless tie game between Burlington and Keokuk in the same association; George Cushman's two safe hits on one pitched ball, which Umpire Klem declared legal, in the Brooklyn-Chicago game of July 10 and Left Fielder Rube Oldring's failure to take the field with the rest of his team mates until several balls and strikes had been called on the batter, due to an interesting conversation with Umpire Sugden, in a recent Athletic-Browns game at St. Louis.

* * *

Honus Wagner recently "fell" for one of the oldest tricks in baseball, I am told. It happened during one of the Pirates' home games, and Honus was so mortified that his team mates say he skipped the evening meal.

* * *

Honus was on first by virtue of a single. Vinx was at bat. Honus was intent upon stealing and didn't watch home plate closely. With the crack of the bat he started for second.

Just then Lobert, the Giants' third sacker, raced forward short as though he were going to scoop up the ball. Snatching Fletcher, taking the cue, hustled to second and by yelling to Lobert to "shoot it."

* * *

Wagner figured that a ground ball had been hit and the Giants would try for a double play. He put on "full speed ahead" and shot into second. Then—and only then—did he discover that Vinx had hit a pop fly which First Baseman Brainerd had caught, and which Brainerd converted immediately into a double play by touching first base.

* * *

A newspaper chap recently wrote a lengthy article pointing out that Jack Warhop, the Yankee pitcher, was the unluckiest pitcher in the American League. After perusing Warhop's record, it seem do us that Warhop is one of the luckiest blokes that ever busted into big league baseball.

* * *

Warhop joined the Yanks in 1909. He's still a member of the team and is drawing a fancy salary. For six years he has gathered in a harvest of dollars from the Yankees' coffers. And this is what he has done to earn it:

In the six-year stretch from 1909 to 1914 inclusive he worked in 196 games; of this number he lost 89 and won only 81—an average of about 15 victories per season. His pitching average for those six years has been only .429. Never once in six years has his average gone over the .500 mark.

* * *

Warhop during those six years has batted for a grand average of exactly .161. His best batting percentage was .207, made in 1912. Warhop has fielded for a grand average of .884 during those six years—probably one of the worst records ever turned in by a pitcher.

* * *

Warhop unlucky, eh? Seems to us that he's one of those horseshoe persons. Any pitcher whose pitching average for six years is only .168, and whose fielding average is only .884, and who is still occupying a major league berth despite this showing, deserves the title of "The luckiest man in baseball."

Scotch Picnic Has Big Card of Events

This is the big day for the Scots. The track events at the annual Scotch picnic commence immediately after the finish of the soccer match for the Dewar trophy. The Caledonian Marathon starts in front of the State House at 1:30 o'clock, and, the runners should reach the grove in West Roxbury not later than 2:50 o'clock.

The relay race for the Walter Scott trophy is conceded to the B. A. A., with the Brookline Gym and Greater Boston teams the chief contenders.

During the athletic competitions there will be contests in award dancing, with a special prize awarded the best dressed Highlander playing the bagpipes.

In the five-mile professional race, which starts at 3:30 o'clock, Abbie Wood, "Billy" Queal, Ted Crooks and Jim Fitzgerald of Australia, should prove the prize winners.

Braves Move Office Today.

The offices of the Braves will be moved today to Braves Field, the administration building now being practically completed.

16-Year-Old Girl After Golf Title

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Alexa Sterling, a sixteen-year-old Georgia girl, who won the women's Southern golf championship in Birmingham in May, has decided to enter the national golf championship for women in Chicago in September.

Miss Sterling has been playing golf for six years. She has the natural golf temperament and the courage and doggedness without which match play is impossible. In spite of her youthful inexperience, it is believed by her friends that she will at least show up well in Chicago.

Miss Sterling qualified a year ago at Long Island with eight among the best score. She was beaten by George Ann Bishop by only 2 up and 1 to play. Since that time she has improved her game 29 per cent. For six years golf has meant to her close and intelligent study and constant progress. She isn't excitable; has studied the game and is willing to work long hours at practice.

TWO GAMES TODAY MR. LANNIN HOPES

At last!

Baseball at Fenway Park after three days of famine.

Are the fans hungry for the "Play Ball" order by the "Umpf"

And are we feeding 'em?

"Ee-yah," as Hughey would say.

Just a juicy morsel in the shape of a double dose with the Indians from Cleveland-ville.

Two scalps!

Nothing less will satisfy the Boston fans.

And here's where the Red Sox sharpen their knives for the Cleveland top-knots.

The first game is scheduled at 1:30.

For three days the Carrigan band has been trying to get in a double clash with Fohl's favorites.

The weather has saved Fohl.

Lucky Lee!

Unless the rival skippers do some juggling at the last minute Joe Wood will square off against "Red" Martin, while "Babe" Ruth will have it out with Willis Mitchell. Two sporty set-tos may be anticipated; likewise two Red Sox wins—more than likely.

Lee Fohl, the wizard of Waterbury, is constructing a new ball club for Magnate Charley Somers. He is starting Chandler from the bottom, and, judging by results of late weeks, is getting along very well with his job.

Wilie, the Indians' new right fielder and lead-off man, came calling with Roger Bresnahan when the Duke of Tralee was managing the Cardinals. The Kid has always been fast and has improved a lot since he was in the big leat before, the gossips say.

Old Reliable Terry Turner is on third; Jay Kirke, who can hit, but cannot do much else, on first. Wambsganss, one likely looking recruit, on second, and Chapman, as good as they come, at short.

The slugging Joe Jackson and the slashing Elmer Smith, together with the aforesaid Wilie, man the club's outer works.

Dorchester Man Hard at Work for Trip to World Series

J. M. ROCHE.

Only thirty-six days more—and the AMERICAN'S great battle of votes for the twenty-five trips to the World's Series games will be a thing of the past.

There is no time to lose now—no time to waste wondering what your fellow-fans may be doing. Before you realize it this great opportunity to see all of the World's Championship Games, no matter where they may be played, without a cent of expense to you, will have passed and the twenty-five REAL fans will be leaving the station on the AMERICAN'S Special Pullman train to travel from city to city, stopping at the best hotels and enjoying the great baseball battles. Reserved seats are all at the expense of this newspaper.

You can be on that train if you will only send every effort in piling up your vote totals by rounding up every possible vote coupon from now until September 12. The awards awaiting the twenty-five "most popular fans in New England" are well worthy of the time and effort spent in gathering the all-important vote coupons. NOW is the time to hustle if you want to be among the fortunate twenty-five.

One of the "fans" whose friends are exerting every effort to send him through a winner is Jaime M. Roche of No. 1536 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester. He says, "I want one of the AMERICAN'S FREE trips to the World's Series games, watch me hustle for it!"

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

BOSTON IS OUTDRAWING THE other three Eastern cities combined in the American League, and Connie Mack, Charley Somers of the Cleveland club, who helped finance the American League for B. B. Johnson, is getting a very bad break in encountering so much rain here this trip.

* * *

SOMERS HAS SUFFERED A BIG financial setback of late years, though when he started in baseball he was a millionaire several times over. Originally he had a team of stars, and in the past ten years has probably been as free with the kale as any club owner in the A. L. But he never had the right manager and that's why he now finds himself in his diamond jam.

* * *

CONNIE MACK ISN'T DOING A lick of business in Philadelphia. Clark Griffith hasn't been drawing over 1,200 bugs a day, though his gate is now saved for a while by virtue of those two decisive triumphs over the White Sox. Bill Donovan's luminous arm (the Yale Kangaroo) fallen off about 50 per cent. Of late weeks the weekday turnouts have generally totalled over 4,000, whereas in the Spring the Yankees were outdrawing the Giants.

* * *

THE RED SOX HAVE CLEARLY outdrawn their three Eastern playmates on this stand against the West; in fact, Fenway Park business has practically excelled the combined business done in the other three Eastern cities.

* * *

IT IS HAD ENOUGH FOR MR. LAN-nin, with his high-salaried club, to be losing so many home dates. But it stings Somers far worse, as here was the only spot in the East the Indians could hope to get the money, while there's nothing doing with the mobs when operating at home.

* * *

IF BY ANY HOOK OR CROOK the Bears should be nothing doing at Fenway Park again today, the Red Sox will be unable to get in their full complement of home games with the Indians. When Lee Fohl brings his outfit back on its third and final call in September he is scheduled to carry horseheats only three days.

EVERS IS BACK IN BRAVES' LINEUP

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Is the theatrical "Batting Jawn" Evers preparing to pull something? Though his recent three days' suspension expired at midnight, making him eligible for competition in today's battle on the West Side with the Cubs, Evers stated this morning that he was not exactly sure that he would don his spangles.

"You see, it's this way," declared "Battling Jawn." "The heat got me over in Cincinnati; in fact, I was overcome by it one day. Then, I have really been in a lot of games when my leg was ailing. But Stallings and the boys needed me, so I worked daily.

"After my sickness of last Winter as soon as the season opened, I hustled my leg. After being overcome with the heat in Cincinnati I really should not have played in Pittsburgh at all. But I got in and hustled my best.

"Here's Mr. Tener setting me down for three days, just because I had some fun with my old pal, Fred Clarke. Well, I may extend my vacation a few days on my own hook, though the umps tell me I can play today if I want to. That's mighty nice of them.

Stallings when told that Evers was figuring upon staying out a few days longer, slipped a knowing wink at the AMERICAN'S correspondent.

The Miracle Man is evidently banking upon having the captain on deck this afternoon, and more than likely the Trojan who has never been enumerated with the "stallers," will get busy at the keystone sack.

Evers' absence has gone a long way in costing the Braves two games here this trip. The rattled pitchers for the matinees are Hughes or Davis for Boston, and Lavender or the sensational Karl Adams, who recently faced Grover Alexander, for Chicago.

The Cubs beat it on to St. Louis, where the Western trip comes to a close, tonight. Pat Ragan and Dick Rudolph moved on to the Missouri town last night, so as to be thoroughly rested for the forthcoming combats with the clan of Huggins.

Tener Refuses to Lengthen Evers Ban

PITTSBURG, Aug. 7.—President Tener of the National League said today that the three-day suspension of Johnny Evers, captain of the Boston Braves, for his fight with Fred Clarke, manager of the Pirates, Tuesday afternoon, had been given on the strength of the umpire's report and would stand. He refused to lengthen the penalty to have the suspension lengthened will prove of no avail, Tener said.

RECAPITULATION.

McLoughlin—Service games, won 10, lost 3; placed points, 28; aces, 45.
Williams—Service games, won 7, lost 10; placed point, 29; aces, 5.

The Maurice E. McLoughlin-R. Norris Williams, 2d, Longwood championship tennis match in which the California Comet defeated the Boston star, three sets to one, was an event brilliantly and stubbornly played and this in spite of a dripping rain which fell most of the afternoon.

From the very start of the match there was fast tennis, and throughout both players kept to the back of the courts. Whether McLoughlin was afraid of slipping on the moist grass in his characteristic rush to the net, or whether he reserved that form of play for extreme emergency, is hard to say. But there was no serve and follow up with a sprint to the net in this match, the game yesterday could hardly be recognized as belonging to the style of play characteristic of the Californian a year ago.

His back court play, however, was just as brilliant, though hardly as spectacular. The tremendous overhead smashing was missing, except in case of service, which proved as rapid and as accurate as ever and many of his cannon ball deliveries netted aces.

There is a reserve strength in McLoughlin's play that begets confidence, and when he had gained an advantage in the first set to Williams' three, it was forty minutes ago certainty how the match would go.

MANY STIRRING RALLIES.

In spite of the fact that the balls were rendered slightly heavy with moisture and regardless of low bounds, the ball could be sent back over the net with bewildering rapidity. Rallies were not uncommon in which a dozen or his shots in a half dozen times almost with his full strength. Right and left, up and down the court went the ball, seldom out a place to land where the "retired player" could not reach it with accuracy.

The nature of which stamped the game as championship tennis was the narrow margin of space between the ten of the net and the ball. No matter how hard hit, the ball would fly within an inch or two of the top, and once, when Williams' effort sent the ball carrying over the set, after bonging for the fraction of a second on the ten cords, the ball dropped in the court with equal speed for the same kind of a top-not play.

After the second set it became evident that McLoughlin was over generaling his adversary. The Californian often brought a snappy rally to a close by cutting the drive covered ball so that it would fall near the net with little bound. But Williams was not to be caught napping, and usually got those twisters, but was unable to place the ball with precision. Upon several occasions Williams ran to the net only to be badly fooled.

The first two sets went 6-3, 6-3, in favor of McLoughlin, but Williams came back with a 6-2 set that raised the hopes of the Harvard man's supporters.

WILLIAMS AT HIS BEST.

Without third set it will long be remembered as an exhibition of remarkable tennis when the service of the racquet on shot over the net, like a missile discharged by mechanical means, deliberately seeking a weakness to stay all power and only saved two games for the fourth set.

Reverence for the Californian, however, were not long in the ascendency and in the fourth set the same again with 6-2 for the match and final victory for the Longwood gun. He is owner of the trophy and may take it to the Pacific Coast as soon as he likes. It is his for all times.

The last eight games, of which Williams won two, were a brilliant wind-up of an excellent match.

Although the play was hard and furious it could easily be seen that McLoughlin had plenty in reserve for a possible set where he would be compelled to use every ounce of his energy. It was Cali reserve cropping out now and then which won the match for the Champion.

At times during the games the crowd on the Longwood clerk of the cushions hereabore thought to behold the ghost of the major league baseball alone.

Gallant Gets Offer for Salt Lake Bout

Gilbert Gallant, the Chelsea lightweight, and Joe Rivers of Los Angeles, will probably meet in a ten-round bout at Salt Lake City, Utah, the middle of September. Alex McLean, manager of Gallant, yesterday received a flattering offer from a Salt Lake promoter for Gallant's services, and immediately wired back his acceptance.

Rivers has not yet agreed to clash with the Chelsea boy, but it is not believed he will balk. Gallant and Rivers recently fought twelve rounds to a draw at the Atlas A. A.

Chicago Man Wins Title.

BAR HARBOR, Aug. 7.—Joseph T. Bowen of Chicago won the State lawn tennis title by defeating Allister McCormick, also of Chicago, 7—6, 6—8, 6—1, 6—2.

CARMAN-DIDIER IN SPECIAL MATCH

TONIGHT'S RACE CARD.

MATCH MOTOR-PACED RACE—Clarence Carman, Jamaica, L. I., vs. Leon Didier, Paris, France.

25-MILE MOTOR-PACED RACE—Jimmy Moran, Chelsea, vs. Bobby Walthour, Atlanta, Ga., vs. "Pinkie" Turville, Revere, vs. Harold Rollins, Everett.

Track tonight.

Clarence Carman, the Jamaica Cyclone, and Leon Didier, the flying Frenchman, will be the opposing riders in the match race, while Jimmy Moran, Bobby Walthour, "Pinkie" Turville and Harold Rollins will take the post in the 25-mile event. The motor-paced card of amateur and professional races will be run in between the big features.

The match race will be decided in heats, best two in three. The first two heats will be of ten miles distance, while the third, if necessary, will be five miles.

No program arranged for the Revere track this season can come up to the above in all-round class. It should provide many thrills, as well as some fine racing.

The Carman-Didier encounter is sure to be one of the most sensational contests ever put on at the beach oval. Both men are speed artists of the first water, especially over the short course that this evening's race will be run. Moreover, there is a personal enmity existing between this pair, which means a stubborn fight from start to finish.

Bobby Walthour is the favorite in the four-cornered race, though manager Turville and Moran to give him close battle.

Rain checks issued last Saturday night hold good for tonight's meet.

Vanitie Wins Race by Windward Work

MARION, Aug. 7.—Alexander Smith Cochran's Vanitie won over the Republic in the run of thirty-three miles from Newport to Buzzard's Bay in a race considered by expert yachtsmen as a supreme test of sailing, windward work, by corrected time of 9 minutes and 31 seconds.

The two races started at 11:10. The Vanitie, with Cornelius Vanderbilt and W. Butler Duncan in the cockpit, was first at the lightship. The Republic followed a few minutes with Edsall Ford, Jr., at the helm, and Charles Francis Adams directing her movements. Both yachts had club topsails, staysails, jibs and baby-jib topsails set.

The Vanitie crossed the finish line at 3:15:18 and the Resolute at 3:26:51.

Quincy Y. C. to Hold Cruise.

The annual run of the Quincy Yacht Club to Marblehead will be held tomorrow. The launches will start at 9:10 a. m., and all other classes, except O, will get away at intervals of five minutes. Yachts in Class D will be the last to report. Commodore H. S. Crane has offered prizes in each class.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

Said Evers unto Quigley: "I have made a bad mistake,
I never meant to walk upon your toes."

Said Quigley unto Evers: "I was wrong, so help me Jake!"
I never meant to bust you on the nose."

Said Evers unto Quigley: "It was just a little joke
I never intend to walk upon your corn."
"I like them words," then Quigley said,

"them words you just have spoke.
I never meant to bust you on the horn."

A strike then came across the plate and Johnny Evers cried:
"YOU Hizzgdoguh'fic so ETC."
The umpire swung upon his foot and calmly he replied:
"SWAY OR SOASSOgon ILMOP ETC."

EPILOGUE.

John Evers will approach the Ump with kind and friendly eye
When all the Cubs turn to talk and all the scrap go dry.

Spectators who congregate when an accident has happened use mighty little sense—almost as little as the people who are detailed there.

IF YOU WANT TO LEARN THE SHORTEST WAY TO THE NEAREST HOSPITAL ASK A POLICEMAN A CIVIL QUESTION.

"A little brief authority," I think Bill Shakespeare said,
Dr else some other ancient poet long since cold and dead
Who questioned a policeman and was walloped on the head.

The Federal League has released two umpires. If Johnny Evers had his way the National League would release about eight.

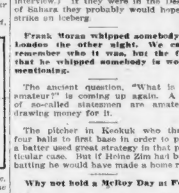
"Lee Fohl's men hope to strike a new winning streak in Boston." (From late interview.) If they were in the Desert of Sahara they probably would hope to strike an iceberg.

Frank Moran whipped somebody in London the other night. We can't remember who it was, but the fact that he whipped somebody is worth mentioning.

The ancient question, "What is an amateur?" is coming up again. A lot of so-called amateurs are amateurs drawing money for it.

The pitcher in Keokuk who threw four balls to first base in order to pass batter out of turn certainly had his particular case. But if Heine Zim had been batting he would have made a home run.

Why not hold a McRoy Day at Fenway Park? In view of all that Mr. McRoy has done for baseball we feel sure that a great many fans would attend if they had passes.



SAFETY FIRST.

The boy stood on his grandstand seat
And softly shook his head.
"The peanut mercenaries mash my feet
When I sit down," he said.

Sports of All Sorts

"THE trouble with baseball just now," remarks Charles Hercules Ebbets, "is that Commercialism has it. Charles is wrong. It's because Commercialism is creeping out of baseball.

WILLIE HITCHEN isn't as showed a bloke as he pens agents claims. Will says he can beat off Freddie Welsh's dome in a 20-round bout but he won't fight Frederick because Frederick wants about 99.44-100ths of the gate receipts.

If William is so sure he can beat Frederick why should he quibble over guarantees for that date? Wouldn't he make ten times as much as champion and a match with Welsh, champion, is a sure road to the championship.

HAL CHASE, who was a .300 cloutter in the American League, is hitting only .250 in the Federal. From this you'll conclude that the pitching in the Federal League is better than in the American.

But—on the other hand—"Babe" Borton, who was a weak hitter while in the American League, is swatting around the .300 mark in the new organization.

Joe Tinker bit for .317 in his last year in the National League. He's hitting about .260 with the Feds. Which proves nothing, because Les Mages, who hit .254 in the National League last year, is clubbing 'em out for about .350 in the Federal circuit.

A GENT bought a race horse named Cy Merrick. He entered Cy in a race and extended a cordial invitation to all his friends and relatives to "get down a bet on Cy." The invitation was accepted. Cy was quoted 3 to 1—and Cy lost the race.

The next time Cy was entered his owner nosed with those who had gone down to defeat on Cy in his first race to plunge again.

"Here's your chance to get even—and ahead," said Cy's owner. "Cy is a sure winner this time."

But the sorrowing crowd requested the owner of Cy to go to a place that's hotter than it is here and refused to bet. Whereupon, Cy, who was a 40 to 1 (Forty to One) shot, won the race.

Grand Circuit Results.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 7.—The Grand Circuit races were run off on a muddy track this afternoon. The results: 2:11 trot, $1,600, Colorado Range, McDonald, straight heats; 2:11 trot, $2,000, Sadie S. Murphy, sixth and three fifths, 2:11 pace, $1,000, Flay B. Snow, fifth and three firsts

GREAT GOLF CARD AT MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA, Aug. 7.—The finals at 36 holes in the first division of the Essex County Club handicap best-ball foursome tournament today will have the local champ pitted against the Country Club. Former Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham and F. J. Alsop, a former intercollegiate champion, will represent the Clyde Park Club, while C. M. Amory and H. W. Estabrook will start for the Country Club.

Both pairs reached the finals by playing an unbeatable brand of golf yesterday. Amory and Estabrook had two hard matches and in the third round registered a big surprise by defeating Francis Ouimet, the national amateur champion, and W. S. Carleton of Brae-Burn, by the wide margin of 6 and 5.

After luncheon they disposed of P. W. Whittemore and H. H. Wilder of the Country Club, 1 up.

Alsop and Frothingham did not have to extend themselves in defeating W. E. Stiles and W. S. Walt in the third round, winning, 3 and 2. However, their semi-final contest with R. W. Brown of Meadowbrook, and P. Gilbert of Brae-Burn, they only won, 1 up.

The competition should result in the finals in the consolation sixteen and consolation eight. Today's card:

First division, finals—F. J. Alsop and L. A. Frothingham, Country Club vs. C. M. Amory and H. W. Estabrook, Essex County Club.

Consolation sixteen, finals—John Reese, Essex County Club vs. Dr. Frank Smith, Myopia Hunt Club; W. Forbes, Myopia Hunt Club vs. Consolation eight, finals—F. D. Frazier and R. F. Tucker, Essex Co.; C. T. M. Claflin, Country Club, and J. B. Chase, Woodland.

Labor Day Combat for Johnny Kilbane

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 7.—If Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, will overlook a little matter of two pounds and let Ritchie Mitchell of Milwaukee come in at 128 pounds, there will be a match in Milwaukee on Labor Day between this wonderfully clever pair of featherweight artists.

Tom Andrews has been trying to clinch it up, but so far hasn't had any particular success because of the weight differences. Kilbane insists that Mitchell, who is growing fast, make 128 or there will be no contest. Ritchie doesn't feel like attempting it, and there you are.

Suffrage Day Next Tuesday.

GIBBONS-PACKEY TRAINING FOR $32,500 GO

By JACK CONWAY.

WORD comes over the wire from Chicago that Packey McFarland and Mike Gibbons have started training for their ten-round bout which will be held in a New York ring on September 11. This news will probably not startle the sporting world. We ourselves would do a little real training if we were offered as much money as either Packey or Mike will receive for their tussle, provided it ever takes place.

W. C. Marshall, the "angel" who is promoting the contest, says he was forced to guarantee the rival fighters $32,500 in order to grab off the big whirl. Packey is to get $17,500 while Gibbons will be forced to be satisfied with a paltry $15,000 for his services.

This means that the honorable Mr. Marshall will have to take in $25,000 at the gate before he makes a cent of profit as it will cost several thousand dollars to stage the contest.

WE would not be the least bit surprised if the battle never took place. The boxing public is not eager to see Packey and Mike clash in a ten-round decisionless bout. If the men were meeting in a twenty-five-round decision match with some kind of a championship at stake, conditions would be different. Then, too, McFarland has been out of the boxing game for two years and the average flatio lover is not going to pay fancy prices to see a "come back" in action even though said "come back" was a ring marvel when he "retired" from the roped arena. It is likely, however, that McFarland and Gibbons have consented to box on a percentage basis, or that they will consent to do so before long. Otherwise Mr. Marshall is going to drop a big bundle of money as Packey and Mike will be very fortunate if they play to a $25,000 house.

SANDY FERGUSON says he would journey to New York and fight Jess Willard ten rounds for one-tenth of the amount which McFarland and Gibbons are supposed to have been guaranteed. What's more, the Chelsea heavyweight seems he would give the "fans" a run for their money.

Just now Ferguson is not worrying about Willard as he has a pressing engagement with Sam McVey at the Atlas Club next Thursday night. He is scheduled to travel over the twelve-round route with George Lawrence's husky glove wielder.

FERGUSON is confident he will give McVey a merry battle. He's in fine physical condition and declares that he must dispose of the colored heavyweight, or at least lead him to a draw, if he is to keep in the limelight. Sandy has been in secret training for the past two weeks and is prepared to give a good account of himself. He says that his left hand is working as well as ever and that he will give McVey an interesting session. Ferguson's right hand punch was always his biggest asset. He shot it straight, and as there was plenty of force behind it the opponents had cause to worry. Sandy Ferguson and Joe Jeanette all ran against this celebrated blow in their careers.

LACK of condition has been Ferguson's big fault. This has caused him to pull many tricks in the ring which have made him unpopular. But when Sandy has been right, he has caused the fought a clean battle. He says he is in good condition now and that he'll beat McVey. We'll be better able to pass upon this question after watching the frolic at the Arena next Tuesday evening.

AL SCHURAY writes us as follows from Grand Island, Neb.:

Johnny Howard, the Nebraska middleweight who is the principal reason for the middleweight championship of the world is probably the most unassuming boy in this city.

Howard has been offered two fights with Young Ahearn, manager of the Nebraska boy, but when Howard's manager mentioned Jack Kirkham, Ahearn's manager immediately signed articles to meet Howard. Yet he comes out in the daily papers and says the middleweight will fight his change and that he is willing to meet Howard. Yet he signed with Kirkham.

Ahearn will fight Ahearn any place and at any time. Ahearn has been trying to get Johnny Howard to fight Jack Blake. Ahearn offered the services of Howard to the Claremont A. C. of Omaha for $500 and expenses. Five pounds that Jimmy Twyford can secure. This offer goes for Al Kaufman, Mike Gibbons, George Chip.

Ahearn will pay Jack Dillon, Bob Moha, Harry Wills, Mike Gibbons, Sailor Grande, Gus Christie, Buck Crouse, Montana Big Boy Young Webster, Billy Maxwell and Jack Driscoll.

Will Not Transfer Skeeters.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—President Barney Dreyfuss of the National League put a halt to the yarn that New Jersey would be transferred to New London by stating the circuit would remain intact the rest of the season.

Boston Men in Title Play.

CRAWFORD, N. H., Aug. 7.—Joseph Wright of Boston will today meet James Nowell of Boston in the championship round of the White Mountain title. Wheelwright defeated A. E. Kent of Boston, 6—4 and 6—2.

Ring Results

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 7.—Joe Welling and Ad Wolgast fought ten fast rounds and the majority of the ringsiders declared Welling had a shade.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Jack Britt held Matty Leritsky to a draw in ten fairly fast rounds.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Johnny Ertle knocked out Joe Rolfe in the fifth round.

M'Namara Lands Open Golf Title of Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Thomas McNamara, the Boston professional, with a total of 296 strokes for the 72 holes, won the open golf championship of Philadelphia.

His took 72 for the morning round and 75 in the afternoon, a total of 148 for 36 holes, duplicating his score of yesterday when the first half of the tournament was played.

James Barnes, Whitemarsh, and C. H. Hoffner of the Philadelphia Country Club, tied for second with cards of 303, while E. W. Loos, Pocono Manor, and James Thomson, Philadelphia C. C., with 304 each, divided fourth and fifth money. Fred McLeod of Washington was sixth, with 305.

J. J. McDermott, former national title holder, dropped out in the morning round, as did eight other players, leaving 40 of the original 48 to finish the final round. The tournament was played on the links of the Philadelphia Country Club at Bala. A heavy rain early in the day made the course slow and soggy.

Jennings Offers Pile for James; Offered Earl H.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Manager Jennings of the Detroit Tigers today made a cash offer of $18,000 for Pitcher James of St. Louis Browns.

Manager Rickey would not consider the deal for James, but offered Pitchers Hamilton and Outfielder Jacobson, Infielder Heilman and $5,000.

Jennings has also made a big cash offer for Pitcher Ayres of Washington.

Here's the Sad Story of Cruel Baseball War

Here, in brief, is the history of the Federal League case:

January 1, 1914—Indicted by the Federal Baseball Grand Jury on the charge of attempting to murder the nice little monopoly that was controlled by the National Commission.

March 1, 1914—Tried and found guilty by Judge Johnson, John Tener, Garry Herrmann and the rest of the jury.

April 13, 1914—Sentenced to die on July 4 by Judge and Jurryman Ban Johnson.

July 4, 1914—Granted a stay of execution until Labor Day.

October 5, 1914—Federal League claims trial was unjust and appeals for new trial at hands of General Public.

April 10, 1915—New trial granted.

May 1, 1915—Again found guilty by Organized Baseball Jury and sentenced to death July 4, 1915.

July 4, 1915—Sentenced to life imprisonment.

August 1, 1915—Application made for pardon.

August 5, 1915—Application being considered.

TABER WILL NOT START IN THE HALF-MILE

By TED MEREDITH.

World's Champion Middle Distance Runner.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—It is to be hoped that there will not be as much wind when the senior events are held today as there was during the juniors yesterday. The gathering of athletes promises to provide a lot of sport. There are ten events on the program in which the winners can be picked with any degree of confidence.

I will start only in the quarter, and I look for Diamond the Chicago U. star to be my most dangerous competitor, although this boy Sloman can make anybody hustle.

Taber has decided he would not to start in the half-mile, and the race should be a struggle with Caldwell, the present champion, as the most likely winner. He will have Joe Higgins and Campbell to beat and the Coast men are hopeful that Bonnett, of Los Angeles, will be among the leaders when the tape is reached.

I am looking for Kivlat to give Taber a great race in the mile. Abel is in great trim, and as for Taber and Kivlat have both declared that they are ready to retire from the running game, and each is anxious to leave the track as the National champion.

The time will not likely be anything startling, as the wind makes times at least ten seconds slow in a mile. It will be a question of strength over the course, if the wind is blowing as it did yesterday. Joe Ray, of Chicago, has a record of 4:16 2-5, and should be a contender.

Hannes Kolehmainen should win the five-mile race without any trouble. There does not appear to be anyone here capable of giving him an argument. Eddie Kern looks like an easy winner in the three-mile walk, for which the entries are few.

Kelly and Simpson, each with a mark of fifteen seconds flat, will clash in the high hurdles. Fred Mitchell, Westerners are confident Simpson will defeat Kelly. Nat Fenton is a strong candidate in Fred Murray of the Olympic Club, who ran Kelly to a six-inch finish.

The same runners are favored for the place in the long jump. Murray won this event handily from Kelly last week and appears to be a better man in the long than in the high.

I expect the East to make a good showing in the weight events. Pat Ryan ought to win the 56-pound weight and hammer throws, his most formidable opponent being Joe Bothner. They tell me there are two giant weight-throwers here who have to be reckoned with. They are named Donovan and Mahoney and learned to juggle 56-pounders in the old country.

"WHERE you were brought up, Celestia—upon my word of honor."

She shook her head, but without conviction.

"I want to see," she said.

But Tommy leaped to his feet.

"You're the rascal that stole my clothes," he cried.

Old Man Smellsgood stood there grinning from ear to ear.

"Well, I'll forgive you," said Tommy, "and give you money if you'll find Professor Stilliter."

The Indian shook his head and said, "No good."

"He's got a lot of money on him, and he'll give you some if you find him and he's still alive."

"Dead?"

"Maybe." And Tommy told briefly what had happened and what Celestia believed had happened. The Indian set off at a great pace toward the column of smoke which marked where the fire had been checked by the lake.

Then Celestia and the two others lighted candles and went into the cave. They went in silence from cavern to cavern. Here the electric plant still looked in good running order. Here a man might hide and pretend to be a voice. They did not explore the whole extent of the great subterrene; only enough to prove that someone had lived there for many years in a state of pseudo magnificence, something like the settings of an expensive Broadway production.

"Doesn't any of it seem familiar?" Tommy asked.

And indeed it was—for at last Celestia saw that her dream had been a man-made dream and that she herself had been merely the instrument in the fulfilment of a purpose, the object of which was unknown to her. She ran over in her mind all the thousand and one incidents which had combined to make her believe absolutely that she had been heaven born and sent on earth to perform a great mission, and the more she thought of the cleverness of the scheme of which she had been the instrument the more indignant she became.

Tommy said nothing more—there was nothing much to say. He did not remind her of the times he had told her that she was as mortal as the rest of the world and that Stilliter had only a selfish purpose in using her along with his father and the other capitalists.

He felt that she would see all this with renewed force in her own way, and that she would take steps to nullify any of the harm she might have done as the agent of unscrupulous conspirators.

All the years she had spent there surrounded by the luxury and the comforts a princess might have envied, passed in review before the amazed Celestia, and one by one incidents which now seemed ridiculously simple resolved themselves into significant facts.

She even remembered vaguely how she had arrived with Professor Stilliter when she was such a little girl, and she recollected her first meeting with Tommy when he appeared in the woods and she found out what the outside world was like.

It was all very sudden, very mystifying, and she did what any normal girl could have done if her sweetheart had stood as close as Tommy stood to her.

She turned to him and threw her arms around his neck, and began to cry like a little child.

"The devil!" said Freddie.

"No," said Tommy stoutly. "It's turned out to be heaven after all. Beat it, Freddie."

* * *

To Celestia the train seemed to move no faster than a snail. To get back to the world in time to undo what she had done, before it should be too late, occupied her mind to the exclusion of almost everything else. Stilliter was dead. His influence had no longer power on her. She became more rational and human with every passed hour, and she became no less sweet.

They had waited at the cave until old man Smellsgood came back with definite news of Stilliter's death.

"Him plenty enough dead," he said, and nodded repeatedly. Then, with a mouth so innocent that even butter wouldn't have melted in it, he said:

"He not got a lot of money on him."

"Not now. I know that," said Tommy, "as well as you do."

When at last they reached New York they proceeded at once to Madison Square Garden, where a tremendous pro-Barclay mass meeting was in session. The triumvirate were all present. Celestia, in a dark cloak, with a veil over her face, waited outside with Freddie until Tommy should signal to her to enter.

He came presently.

"Sturtevant is speaking," he said quickly. "He's explaining how you, your work done, have gone back to heaven. Celestia, they believe him! You might think it was Matthew, Mark, Luke or John addressing a lot of early Christians; people are sobbing, come now and get it over with."

Sturtevant broke off in the midst of his peroration. A slim, white, commanding figure was moving slowly toward him. His jaw dropped. Then he dropped to his knees and, a look of rapture on his face, he cried in a voice of thunder, "Celestia."

Even this piece of play-acting could not save the situation for him. The people had caught in his face the first swift-fleeting look of unutterable fright and dismay. And now they had caught sight of Celestia, and rose to her with a great roar of sound.

She passed slowly through them, mounted the platform, turned, lifted one hand a little, and there was silence.

She asked them to be patient with her. She had wronged them. Perhaps she had done irreparable harm in the world. But it would be wonderful if they would listen to her once more—they had always been so good to her—

And presently she had them enthralled in the spell of her clear, sweet voice. And she told them her story from the beginning. And when she had finished she just stood and looked straight ahead of her. And murmurs swept the vast place as little breezes go dappling over smooth water. Then Celestia turned and pointed to the triumvirate.

And a man with a voice like a trumpet stood up in the midst of the hall and started for the platform, shouting, "Kill!" "Lynch!"

The man was Gunsdorf.

Then pandemonium broke loose. And the three arch conspirators turned and, darting between the curtains at the back of the platform, fled for their lives.

But nobody hurt Celestia, or thought of hurting her, and after a time Tommy got her away and took her out of the city to a little town in Westchester County, and left her there, until he could get a license to marry her.

Watch for the next instalment of this wonderful serial in Monday's Boston American.

Celestia throws her arms around Tommy's neck in her delight at learning the truth.

Parents and the Child

How Ideas Differ on Punishment

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company.

ANUMBER of us were discussing a matter of which much has already been said—namely, keeping one's word to children.

"Of course," said one woman, "one should try to fulfil a promise under all circumstances—but especialy to a child."

"It is not easy to do so always," objected another woman.

"What about promises of punishment?" one man asked.

I recalled something a certain grandmother used to say to her children about their little ones.

"He very careful," she counseled, "about making a threat—but when you have made one, stick to it."

I quoted this bit of advice now.

"There," said a wise father, "you have the secret. Think twice before you speak once, but when you have decided that you are right in promising a reward or a punishment, let nothing prevent your fulfilling that promise."

"Don't circumstances alter cases?" a mother asked timidly. "If you tell a child you will chastise him if he transgresses a certain law of yours, should you carry out the threat even if the child comes to you and confesses that he has disobeyed?"

"You would find it out, anyhow," the man laughed.

"Perhaps, but you might not," she insisted, "and even if you would find it out anyhow, does it not encourage a child to be deceitful if you make him pay the penalty of a fault he confesses?"

Her question reminded me of an occurrence about which I have often thought. It is not a hypothetical instance, but something that really happened to a child I once knew. I related the circumstances now to this group of friends.

In a few words the case was as follows: A small boy, aged eleven, was in the habit of playing ball on the lawn in front of and close to his father's house. While indulging in this sport at different times he broke three panes of glass in various windows. At first his father reprimanded him gravely, but gently. After the third accident he had a serious talk with his son.

"See, here, John," he said, "I know that you and your friends like to play ball on the lawn, and I do not object to your doing so as long as no mischief results. But I cannot have you breaking any more windows. You must remember that. If you cannot have your game here without damage you must go elsewhere to play."

"All right, father," the boy agreed. "But if we don't break windows, may we play here?"

"Yes," the parent replied, "you may, but you must not come so close to the house as to smash anything. And, John, if you do break another window I shall punish you. Understand?"

"Yes, father, I understand."

"Remember, I mean what I say. I have tried everything else to make you careful. You know I shall carry out my threat."

"Yes, father."

"Very well; that settles it."

Two weeks passed and all went well. The boys confined their games to that part of the lawn that was at a distance from the house. Then, when they had become oversecure in their immunity from accidents, they came nearer the house, and in the middle a ball John drove it straight through a cellar window. While the boys were watching him he tried to act as if he didn't care. But when his playmates had gone away and his father had come home from business, John went straight to him where he sat in the library.

"Father," he said, "I broke another window."

The father set his jaw resolutely.

"I am sorry, son. You know what I promised."

"Yes, sir. I am ready."

And the father gave him a whipping. He said afterward that he would have proved himself a liar had he not done so. He also said it was the hardest task he had ever had to perform.

As I finished my recital there arose a chorus of exclamations.

"He was a brute!" declared one mother. And another said: "He should never have made such a threat."

One man made himself heard above the others.

"The last statement is beside the question," he remarked. "Even if the father should not have made the threat it was made. This being the case, as a man of his word he was compelled to thrash the kid. It was his manifest duty."

Of course, there were some who agreed with him. But there were as many dissenting voices. I wish I knew what the average parent would say about this matter.

Leaving out the much-disputed and never-settled question as to whether a child should or should not receive corporal punishment, could this man, after having once pledged himself to a certain course, honorably avoid it?

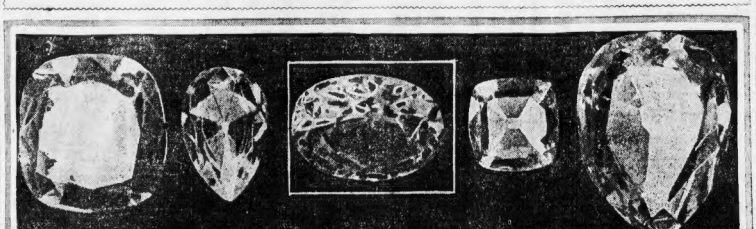
The Romance of the Kohinoor



In the centre the "Kohinoor" diamond, 116 1-16 karats; on the extreme right the "drop" diamond, cut from the Cullinan, 316 karats, and on the extreme left the Square Brilliant, 309 2-16 karats, also part of the Cullinan. Nine gems were cut from the Cullinan, of which two others are here shown, weighing 62 and 92 karats. The value of these stones runs into the millions.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

NOT long ago a friend asked me to recommend to him a good story, full of mystery and romance, with which he could while away the tedium of an entire day of solitude, during which he would "not have a soul to speak to." Consulting my opinion of the desperate state of the human being who cannot find sufficient material in his own mind to carry him through a single diurnal period, I replied: "Then read Wilkie Collins' 'Moonstone.'"

"By Jove!" he said, slapping his leg, "the name alone takes me! Is it about the adventures of some famous diamond or other gem?"

"Yes."

"Then I'll sure read it. Much obliged."

The enthusiasm of my friend for the romance of precious stones expresses a curious passion that lies deep in human nature. We all like to hear about diamonds, rubies, emeralds and other rare gems, even in the abstract; and when it comes to particular stones that have centred the fates of kingdoms about themselves, have inspired plots involving queens and kings, have made the fortunes or caused the fall of great officers of state, and have even led to wars and other public calamities, the interest becomes intense. In fact, the sober histories of not a few famous precious stones are more interesting than any invented story.

Take, for instance, that great diamond whose fame is dimly present in everybody's memory, the Kohinoor, "The Mountain of Light," as the Indian imagination pictured it in its name. The story of the Kohinoor runs through the history of India, in its most romantic and tragic days, like a thread of fire, gleaming frequently with the color of blood.

When its wonderful rays first showed into the eyes of man we do not know with any certainty, but tradition says it was already famous 5,000 years ago, and played a part in the heroic scenes described in the Indian epic, the Mahabharata. It may have been as big as an egg originally, for it is said to have weighed 793 carats when it made its first appearance in recorded history, in the time of Ala-ed-Din, the Ottoman conqueror, who took it to Delhi in the fourteenth century. He is said to have obtained it from a rajah named Malwa, whose family had possessed it for ages. In 1526 Baber, descendant of Tammerlane and Genghis, captured it at Agra.

According to historical statements it had, by that time, been greatly diminished in size by the operations of diamond cutters, seeking to improve its form and brilliance. In 1673 the Grand Mogul showed it to the celebrated traveler Tavernier, and then it weighed 279 carats. In 1739 the Persian usurper, Nadir Shah, sacked Delhi and hunted for the famous diamond among the spoils. It had been cunningly concealed, but a member of the Mogul Emperor's harem revealed its hiding place. She said her master had it sewed up inside his turban. Nadir Shah took a humorous instead of a bloody way to obtain it. He invited his prisoner to exchange turbans with him and insisted upon it as a token of the high personal regard which he felt for the unfortunate monarch.

After various adventures in Persia, the great diamond was taken to Cabul again as the spoil of war, and Ranam Shah was its proud possessor for a few years until his brother, Shujah Shah, put out his eyes and took his kingdom. But the Kohinoor had disappeared and Shuja could not find it, until one day an officer happened to scratch his hand on the plaster wall of the room in which Ranam was confined. He looked closely and found a piercing gleam. Further examination revealed the Kohinoor where Raman had embedded it.

From Cabul the diamond went, by devious and sometimes bloody ways, to Lahore, and it was there when the infant Monarch Dhuleep Singh in 1849 surrendered his crown and kingdom to the British and sent the Kohinoor as a token of his submission to Queen Victoria.

The famous stone was found to be badly cut, according to European ideas, and it contained flaws. It was sent under guard to Amsterdam, a special machine was made to recut it, and after a few weeks of grinding, the Duke of Wellington having started the mill, the great Kohinoor was transformed so that it no longer would have been recognized by the kings, emperors and conquerors who during so many centuries had fought and plotted for its possession.

The Kohinoor is now an oblong, many-facetted brilliant, about an inch and three-eighths in length and weighing about 106 carats. Queen Victoria had it in a brooch. Its model, looking like a real diamond, is to be seen in the exhibition of royal jewels in the Tower of London. There is no set value for these great stones, but, judging from prices that have sometimes been paid, the Kohinoor must be worth at least half a million dollars, and perhaps much more.

The Cullinan, found in South Africa, and still into nine big gems, exceeds the Kohinoor in size, but the latter's historical interest is unique.

Indiscreet

"Look here," said Mr. Bonehedde angrily. "I'm not going to stand this sort of thing any longer. That brother of yours called me a fool today, and right in public, too."

"That's just like Tom," replied his wife. "He's always blurting out family secrets."

ASSESSMENT ON B. & M. NOW SET AT $30

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 7.—The Boston & Maine stock assessment, which is expected to precede reorganization of the road, is now estimated at $30 a share by those preparing the measure which will be presented to the Legislature here.

Governor Spaulding will not call the Legislature in a special session unless the roads interested request that he take action. To call the Legislature would cost $25,000 to $50,000.

George F. Morris, representing the Concord & Montreal road, said the bill as finally drafted had not been presented to the directorates of the leased lines and subsidiary companies for approval, and would not be until the Governor's attitude toward the bill as a whole or any of its provisions had been obtained. "We do this," said Mr. Morris, "in order to save time, for if there are objections we wish to meet them before calling the directors of the various lines together to ratify what has been done. The matter of calling a special session of the Legislature will not be taken up with the Governor until the bill has been finally ratified by the roads interested, and that action cannot be taken until we learn the sentiments of the Governor toward it."

The bill thus far agreed upon is in twenty-four sections. It does not differ in fundamental respects from the measure defeated in the last Legislature except that it provides for a stock assessment to clean up the old debts before a consolidation with the New Hampshire leased lines can become effective. So far as possible the bill follows the phraseology of the Massachusetts act.

Service Board May Probe New Haven Wreck at Atlantic

The Public Service Commission today announced that it might hold a public hearing with regard to Wednesday's train crash on the New Haven road, in which a score of people were injured, when an express ran into a local at Atlantic.

Meanwhile the company places the blame on the engineer. An official statement by the company says:

"The investigation held by officers of the company to determine the cause of the accident near Atlantic Station has been completed.

"Investigation shows that signals were properly displayed to protect train No. 5125, but were not observed by the engineer of No. 5126 in time to prevent the accident.

"John H. Barton, engineer of train No. 5126, has been an engineer in the employ of this company for thirty-four years, and his record up to this time has been excellent.

"Track, roadbed, signals and equipment were in excellent condition."

Say Bad Conditions at Blackwell's Due to Miss Davis' Board

ALBANY, Aug. 7.—Conditions at the New York city prison on Blackwell's Island were severely criticized and blame for them placed directly on the Department of Corrections, of which Katherine B. Davis is the head, in a majority report on an investigation of the penitentiary made public by the State Commission on Prisons. The report recommends the dismissal of Warden Patrick Hayes.

The commission recommends the abolition of doubling up prisoners, the transfer of tubercular prisoners, permission for the prisoners to receive newspapers and write letters, the abolition of "hosing," and the provision of occasional entertainment of a reformative and educational character.

Expect Chatfield to Follow Osborne as Sing Sing Head

ALBANY, Aug. 7.—Major Richard Chatfield, principal keeper at Great Meadow Prison, is expected to succeed Thomas Mott Osborne as warden of Sing Sing. Osborne's removal next week is considered certain.

Chatfield, prior to his employment at Great Meadows, was disciplinarian at the Elmira Reformatory. He has had considerable success in managing criminals and is said to be well liked by the convicts at Great Meadow.

His ideas of prison management are opposed to those embodied in the self-governing plan adopted by Osborne at Sing Sing.

Brockton's Highest Tax Rate.

A tax rate of $22.90 per $1,000, an increase of 20 cents over the rate of $22.70 for 1914, is announced for Brockton. It is the highest rate in the city's history.

STRIKE NEAR AT STURTEVANT WORKS NOW

A strike is imminent today at the Sturtevant Blower Works, controlled by former Governor Foss. The machinists employed there have voted to present today demands exactly the same as the demands which led to the strike at Foss' other plant, the Becker-Brainard Milling Company.

The committee making the demands will report at a meeting Monday night.

Meanwhile a strike has been called at the National Machine and Tool Company's plant at South Boston as an aftermath of the Becker-Brainard strike.

Three hundred men are out. Two Federal investigators are expected in Boston today to look into the local situation.

The Sturtevant workers demand fifty cents an hour, time and one-half for overtime and an eight-hour day.

In the Becker strike both sides are marking time. It was said that the strikers were waiting for Governor Foss to take some action on the State Board of Arbitration's suggestion that the parties enter a conference.

The South Boston strikers walked out at 3 o'clock and went to the headquarters of Machinists' local 264 at Wells Memorial Building, where they were addressed by Business Agent Connolly and international officers. They pledged their leaders that they would remain out and "stick with the Hyde Park strikers and other machinists" in their fight for wage and other betterments.

No disorder attended the walkout. A few of the strikers remained behind, however, to talk with the men who refused to quit with them, the majority of whom are said to be old men who have been in the employ of the company for a score of years.

"It has been decided," Connolly said to the men before they walked out, "that you present to the company demands for a forty-eight-hour week without any reduction in the present rate of wages; time and a half for overtime; all questions of increases in wages to be taken up after the men return; all work of the Becker-Brainard Company, or any other company or its subsidiaries where there are strikes, to be refused until such time as difficulties at those plants are adjusted.

"You must, above all, positively refuse to do any work that comes from the Becker-Brainard concern. Do this and you will get what you are looking for."

Bar 'Grass Widows' from Postoffice Jobs by New Rule

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened on about the same level as yesterday's closing, and the tone was strong. Trading was of fair volume, measured by the recent standard, at the start. Crucible Steel opened at from 90 to 90½, new high prices for this issue. Bethlehem was erratic, opening higher, losing the gain and more, then recovering and showing a larger gain within a few minutes. Pressed Steel Car attained a new high. Interest was confined to war order issues. There was little business in rail or metal stocks. As to the general situation in the stock market, one of the best reviewers in the world said in print this morning:

So far as the security market is concerned, the best financial sentiment is extremely conservative. There is no effort apparently to bid prices up greatly; in fact, the best efforts are to hold prices down. It is feared that the market would be wild if everything good that could be said was said.

There was not much range to prices in any class of stocks during the earliest trading. Some profit-taking occurred soon, and within fifteen minutes the list became irregular. It being the week-end, there was disposition on the part of many traders to realize.

EARLY GAINS AND LOSSES.

In New York fifteen minutes after the opening gains included American Smelting ⅞, Utah Copper ⅛, Car & Foundry ¼, Bethlehem 1½, Crucible 3½, Pressed Steel 1, Westinghouse ¼, Union Pacific ⅛, New York Central ½, Canadian Pacific ½ and Baltimore & Ohio ¼.

Among declines were Anaconda ⅛, American Can ⅝, Allis-Chalmers ¼, U. S. Steel ⅛, Beet Sugar 1⅝, Baldwin ½, General Electric 1, Goodrich ⅛, Mexican Petroleum ⅜, Northern Ore ⅛, Republic Iron ½, Studebaker ¼, Willys-Overland ¼, Southern Pacific ¼, Reading ⅛ and Atchison ⅛. A little later Willys-Overland recovered its loss and showed a gain of 2¾. General Motors advanced 7⅜ to a new high.

SOME COPPERS HERE.

Despite the slump in metal prices in London yesterday, which affected copper shares in New York, some local mining issues were higher early today in Boston. Gains included Copper Range ½, Granby ¾ and Greene-Cananea ⅜, while New Idria, a quicksilver company, advanced 2. Mohawk was off ⅛. Calumet & Arizona ¼, Butte & Superior ½ and American Zinc ⅛. United Shoe Machinery was up ¼. The London metal market is closed today. No buying movement was reported in this country today in either copper, spelter or lead. It is doubted if copper can be marketed in large quantities for awhile at a better price range than from 17 to 18 cents.

CLOSING STOCK PRICES.

Closing prices of leading Boston and New York stocks are given below.

BOSTON STOCKS.

Alaska Gold 32¾, off ⅜; American Woolen pf. 89, up ¼; Boston & Maine 24, unchanged; Butte & Superior 67¼, off ¾; Calumet & Arizona 63, off ⅛; Copper Range 55, unchanged; Granby 83, off ¼; Greene Cananea 40, off ½; North Butte 29⅝, off ⅛; United Fruit 131, off ½; U. Penrose Says He Will Introduce a New Tariff Bill

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—To protect the country from "the collapse which will occur on the close of the war in Europe," Senator Boies Penrose will introduce a new tariff bill at the coming session of Congress.

He made this announcement at a testimonial dinner to Congressman J. Hampton Moore. The new bill will provide a reduction of 15 to 30 per cent, in many of the duties contained in the Payne bill. But it will re-enforce the duty on other commodities and preserve the growing industries of the country, according to Senator Penrose.

M'CALL REPLIES TO GARDNER'S STATEMENT

Republicans throughout the State today are discussing the reply of Samuel W. McCall to the letter of Congressman Gardner, in which the latter came out flatfooted in favor of Grafton D. Cushing as the Republican nominee for Governor.

In his letter Congressman Gardner said: "Many of Mr. McCall's supporters are office holders, past, present or hopeful. Many of them are not able to approach modern problems with open minds."

In his reply Mr. McCall said:

"He characterized my supporters as 'office holders, past, present and hopeful.' He has stigmatized in general terms and sometimes by name the Republicans who were supporting me.

NAMES SUPPORTERS.

"I must admit that all the Republican ex-Governors, taking them in the order of their service from John D. Long to Curtis Guild, declared in favor of my nomination as against Mr. Cushing. There is not one in the list who did not get his office at least as honestly as Mr. Gardner got his.

"Since Mr. Gardner mentions office holders as my supporters I will name the most prominent men I know of who are supporting Mr. Cushing—Augustus P. Gardner, Harrison H. Atwood, Andrew P. Doyle, Walter E. McLane, Frank J. Batchelder.

"Every one of these men either is or has been an office holder, except Mr. Batchelder, who issued the eleventh hour circular in Mr. Cushing's interest last year.

PROGRESSIVE SUPPORT.

"Mr. Gardner, like Mr. Cushing, has much to say about Progressive support. What particular Progressive issue does Mr. Cushing's career illustrate?

"Mr. Gardner says that he is supporting Mr. Cushing because 'for a number of years back the management of our party in the State of Massachusetts has not rested in the hands of persons ready to approach modern problems with open mind.'

"In whose hands had the management of our party in Massachusetts rested for a quarter of a century before the direct primary put it in the hands of the voters? There will be but one name that will spring to the lips of Republicans all over the Commonwealth. It is the name of a distinguished gentleman who is a member of Mr. Gardner's own household.

"NEW BLOOD" ISSUE.

"Mr. Gardner further says that he is for Mr. Cushing because 'the Republican party cannot be put on a sound footing in the State or elsewhere, for that matter, until there is new, liberal, open-minded blood infused into the veins of its management.'

"Evidently he is intending to restore the party by patriotically offering his own veins and those of Mr. Cushing for this transfusion of blood. I doubt if the Republicans of Massachusetts will be misled by foolish talk of infusing new blood into the party, especially from the veins of fossilized Republicans.

"The campaign a year ago, when I undertook it, seemed hopeless. Since the election the coming campaign has appeared not only full of hope, but to have almost a certainty of success."

SHIPPING MEN RESTIVE OVER BRITISH NOTE

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Emphatic demands for immediate action on the shipping situation are pouring in on the administration. The great importing interests of the country are angry because of the delay in definitely stating the position of the United States. Their insistence was today expected to hurry the completion of the reply to the British notes, the tentative draft of which has been sent to President Wilson by Secretary Lansing.

It is positively stated that the note does not take on the form of an ultimatum at any time. At the outset it rejects the British declaration that the allies cannot make a blockade against Germany effective unless she also blockades neutral ports. The United States emphatically asserts that this government did not blockade neutral ports during the Civil War. It is also pointed out that in all of the decisions cited by England in support of her contention, the question of expediency at that time was the moving spirit, but that since then, by means of the various international conferences, a new code of international law has been drafted and that is what Great Britain is now violating.

England is also told, it is stated, that American consular reports indicate that in Scandinavian countries and in Holland British exporters are benefiting through discrimination against American exporters.

England is warned, as was Germany, that the United States is contending for the freedom of the seas for all neutral nations. It is said by State Department officials, however, that there is to be no suggestion in the note that an embargo on arms may be considered in reprisal.

Male Help Wanted.

GLAZIERS WANTED

A strike of men employed as glaziers (setters of glass) by concerns engaged in the Plate Glass and Sash industry in Boston and vicinity, has been called, and many men have summarily left their employment.

The purpose of the strike appears to be to compel employers to conform to certain rules formulated entirely by unions, covering, besides questions of wages and hours of labor, such matters as overtime, traveling expenses, the abolishment of piece-work, limitation of apprentices, etc., etc.

The unions have refused to submit these demands to arbitration or to meet the employers to consider the same.

The only course remaining, therefore, is to seek to fill the places vacated.

The employers desire to have only first class men and to such men, whether previously employed by them or not, opportunity is offered to apply either to the employers direct or to the office of The Masters' & Craftsmen's Societies, at Room 50, in the Master Builders' Building, No. 166 Devonshire st., Boston.

Only such men as are willing to work under Open Shop conditions are desired, and to such men the best wages will be paid in accordance with their ability.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

The Progressive Party Is Doing Great Good by Its Stand for Principles

THE decision of the Progressive party organization to run an independent ticket is consistent with the principles of that party and with the real interests of the Commonwealth.

These gentlemen who want to disorgantze the Progressive party because it has not elected all its candidates are not made of the stuff of true reformers. They declare the Progressive movement a failure, and by that declaration they reveal the fact that they do not know the proper objects of party movements and organizations. They think that a political movement is to give political jobs to certain of its most active leaders. They think that a political party exists to give political honors to ONE group of men as opposed to ANOTHER group of men. They measure the success of a party by the personal political success of its most ambitious members. They count that party a failure which has not won the election.

But all this is wrong. Fortunately, thoughtful and intelligent citizens know that it is wrong. Fortunately, the best men in the Progressive movement know that it is wrong. They understand that a political party is a means to an end, and never an end in itself. They understand that a party is organized to promote certain general principles upon which its members are agreed. They know that it offers candidates for election ONLY because those candidates are pledged to be loyal in office to the principles of the party, and because, under our imperfect system of representative government, we can enact laws only through our political representatives.

If a party achieves its object, even in the defeat of its candidates, it has succeeded and not failed. Candidates are the mere instruments of a party, just as the party is a mere instrument of the citizens who compose it for putting into effect their principles.

Mr. Charles Sumner Bird would not for a moment consider his candidacy for Governor on the Progressive ticket a failure. If anyone today should ask Mr. Bird, confidentially, whether he thought the time and effort which, though a busy man, he spent in leading the Progressive party during two campaigns was a failure, he undoubtedly would say that it accomplished the object which he had in view, and was, therefore, not a failure but a success.

Mr. Bird did not expect to be elected Governor when he accepted the nomination, and his success in obtaining a larger vote than his Republican opponent was probably as great a surprise to him as to many others. But Mr. Bird understood that the object of his party was not merely fulfilled in the election of its candidates, but could also be accomplished by the defeat of those most opposed to the Progressive principles. Therefore, Mr. Bird was willing to devote a large part of two years to the work of being defeated for public office because he understood that merely being elected is not the whole object of a party movement.

By the same token, a party can be a complete failure which continues year after year to elect its candidates to office.

This is true of the Republican party when it stands pat, and it is also true of the Democratic party in those States where it is not progressive.

For these reasons, the elaborate campaign of the stand-pat Republicans of Massachusetts to inveigle important Progressives away from their independent movement and into the Republican organization was doomed to failure, and has utterly failed. The only way in which the Republican organization could bring Progressives into its ranks was by conforming its principles to the principles of the Progressive party. This the stand-pat Republican leaders refused to do, and, as if either to make their refusal too emphatic to be misunderstood, or to make the surrender of the Progressives as humiliating as possible, the stand-pat Republicans this year in the Legislature gave us the most reactionary and stand-pat record which the State has known in the past decade.

Under such circumstances, it was only possible for those Progressives who could acquire a personal advantage by joining the Republican party to abandon the independent Progressive movement.

The AMERICAN respects the attitude of the Progressive party when it refuses to endorse Governor Walsh, even though its members all admit that his record is beyond reproach, tested by the standard of Progressive principles. The record of the national Democratic administration has not commended itself to Progressives like Mr. Bird. They are as unwilling to give the Democratic national party the advantage of their support of its local representatives as they are to give the national Republicans the advantage of their support of its local organization.

There remains, therefore, nothing for them to do but to support an independent ticket. They know that by this course they are accomplishing a great deal more than is accomplished by the ordinary success of party candidates at ordinary elections. They are preserving their political organization intact, so that it may be an influence next year in the national political situation, and they are helping Governor Walsh to hold the Democratic party in the line of progress. They also, by their threatening existence, enable many Republicans to act according to their real progressive instincts when in office, as they would not dare to act if the Republican organization were strong enough to discipline them.

While the Progressive organization remains intact the Democrats will not dare to become reactionary, and the stand-pat Republicans will have no hope of returning to complete power. This in itself is achieving the primary object of a good political party, and it spells SUCCESS, not failure.

"The Man and the Machine"

How the Science of Wealth-DISTRIBUTION Has Failed to Keep Pace with Wealth-PRODUCTION

By Dr. Scott Nearing

This is the first of a new series of articles obtained by the AMERICAN from Dr. Scott Nearing, whose ideas are considered too radical by the trustees of the wealthy University of Pennsylvania.

CARLYLE remarked that without tools man is nothing; with tools he is everything. Man is the tool-making and the tool-using animal. The power of the tool is universal. The old tool was a small affair. In his "Cotter's Saturday Night" Burns says:

"The toil-worn cotter from his labor—
His weekly moil is at an end—
Collects his spades, his mattocks and his hoes,
Hoping a day of ease and rest to spend."

But can you imagine a modern poet writing of our modern industrial order, saying that man collects his electric cranes, locomotive engines, steam rollers and blast furnaces?

In the last few years the type of tools has changed in the most remarkable manner. No longer does man throw his tools over his shoulder as he starts home. He leaves them. There you have the contrast between the tool and the machine. The tool was a thing that the man who used it could make—a thing he owned. As Shakespeare said: "A poor thing, but mine own." It was simple, cheap, easy to handle and to transport. The modern machine is huge, costly, expensive, unwieldy and difficult to transport—so much a social force that no one man can own it or make it.

In the rattle and the roar of modern machinery there seems to be human agency at work. It is the work of the mill. Driving it are powers with which nature drives the universe—Jove's lightnings playing through the dynamos and voltmeters. It is the power of the earth, of the air, of water toiling for man and doing his will. It is one of the wonders of the ages.

What Can the Machine Do?

These are the possibilities of the machine. Now, what can it do for us?

All through the ages men have struggled against want and privation. During one brief half century—from 1725 to 1789—a man here and another man there made it possible, through their inventions, to feed the hungry, to clothe the naked, to shelter the shelterless, and to give every one enough of the necessaries of life to keep the wolf from the door.

The machine has made want and privation eternally unnecessary. It has vanquished that ancient foe of mankind—famine. In the leisure it has created it has made ample room for the arts and sciences, for civilization and progress. The machine has made all this possible. These things are the possibilities of the machine, as opportunities, what it may do. Now, what has the machine actually done?

In the first place, it has led to the production of phenomenal masses of wealth. In the manufacture of pins by hand it takes 140 hours to manufacture 12 packages of one pound each, while the machine does the same amount of work in one hour and a half.

To make 100 pairs of shoes of a certain grade it takes 1,800 hours by hand and 200 hours by machine, and the cost of the machine-made shoes is one-fifth of the hand-made.

When gingham cloth was made by hand it took 5,800 hours to make 500 yards. It takes 72 hours by machine.

In agriculture the same thing is true. A good man with a scythe could formerly reap one acre a day. A good reaper and binder can do it in twenty minutes.

The increased effectiveness, according to United States reports, of man labor when aided by the use of machinery, as indicated by these figures, varies from 150 per cent. in some cases to 2,244 per cent. in others.

The Machine Makes Labor

From this point of view a machine is not a labor-saving but a labor-making device. The quantity of product is almost five times as great per unit of labor as it formerly was. The machine is labor without the human element. The machine is also the man multiplied many times.

The result of this machine creation is enormous increase in wealth. In this country in 1850 there were 23,000,000 people, and now there are 100,000,000—an increase of four-fold. In 1850 there were seven thousand million dollars of wealth in this country; now there are 187 thousand millions—an increase of twenty-five fold. Yet our forefathers in 1850 felt that this country was rich and prosperous.

What has given us this increase in wealth? The increase in population? Yes. But that has been only four-fold. Machinery is the basis of it. Today we are richer than we ever were before, and wealth is increasing. It means that we have mastered the problem of keeping famine away from the door, that we have mastered the problem of making enough clothing for all, of furnishing shelter for all, of producing economically all the things that man needs for health and comfort.

No man need be hungry, cold or shelterless today because there is not an ample supply ready for him of food, clothing or shelter, provided he have the money to buy them. Most of the things he needs can be secured for less money than ever before, thanks to machinery, co-operation and invention. The great difficulty lies in the distribution of the wealth produced on an enormous scale, and increasing at an enormous rate.

Distribution Next Problem

In short, it is for no lack of ability to produce and for no shortage of wealth that we suffer. We make enough of both to go around, but we have not yet found the way to make it go around equitably. The science of wealth-production is highly developed. The science of wealth distribution is our next problem.

In the second place, the machine has turned the tool user into a machine tender. Markham's tool user was master of his tool. He stooped—

"Bowed with the weight of centuries,
His leans upon his hoe and gazes on the ground."

But there is none of that today. Machinery is geared. The man is the servant, the machine the master. The factory owner speeds up his production with an endless chain. The man must maintain the pace or find another job. It is the machine that sets the pace. The man must let the work go on at that pace or he must give way to another who can.

In the third place, the machine has reconstructed industry when each man did his own work, and the people lived in small communities—lived isolated lives. The factory is the new unit.

In 1910, in the factories of this country, there were six and a half million people at work. Two-thirds of them were in factories employing more than 100 men, and one-sixth of them were in factories employing more than 1,000 men.

The machine, the factory, the railroad knitting them together, the financial interest connecting them, the Wall Street financial centre, trusts, big business, have brought us to the place we hold at the present time, all close together around the centres of industrial productivity.

Individual a Cog

In the fourth place, the individual has become a cog in a vast economic mechanism. He is, as Dickenson says, "caught in his own levers and cogs." He no longer creates a product. He does not use the things he creates. His relation to the industrial life of the time is entirely artificial and inhumane. It is this relation that has given rise to unrest and dissatisfaction.

All through the last century this thing has been stirring. Emerson says, "Give us worse cotton, but give us better men." Carlyle says, "Deliver me those rickety, perishing souls of infants, and let the cotton trade take its chance."

It is a resentment that is filling our literature, our drama, our religion, against this new, artificial and inhuman industry which leads a financier to say that if a thing is on the balance sheet he is interested; if not, he does not care.

The machine was made to help mankind in his struggle against want, to help him to get the finer things of life. Its place is that of the servant, not the master. "The man's the gowd for a' that," as Burns said. Men and women are the thing; the people are the objective point, not the product. If the machine becomes the master it usurps the place of men. It must toil for man, and be an aid to him in his struggle for life.

"For the Rain It Raineth Every Day"

As Mr. Shakespeare Observed Upon a Certain Occasion and Under Certain Circumstances—Yet There Is Hope, for on the Rainiest of Rainy Sundays One Can Always Have in the Sunday AMERICAN, and so Fill the House with Sunshine.

"Why so much rain?"

One of the Sunday AMERICAN'S young men took this question the other day, and, taking also an umbrella, journeyed forth into the highways and by-ways of old Boston to confer with all the astronomers and weather-sharps who could be reached.

No other subject, perhaps, is of such immediate importance and great concern to so many people as this of the weather. We are sure all the readers of the Sunday AMERICAN will be tremendously interested in the carefully written report of our young friend and particularly in the opinions of Boston authorities for and against the so-called "sun-spots" theory.

Before long somebody is going to be asking what has become of the old-fashioned Summer, or the old-fashioned citizen who claimed to remember having seen the sun, and it is well to know what the scientists and others have to say in explanation and defence of the Summer of 1915.

Another question of concern to thousands has to do with the political plans of the popular young Governor of Massachusetts, generally acclaimed the most progressive chief executive in the recent history of Massachusetts.

Today or this evening, Governor Walsh will make public his decision about a third campaign. The men most active in the affairs of his own party, as well as men active in the other political parties, are convinced that Mr. Walsh will again be the standard-bearer of the progressive Democracy. All the thousands who, on Thursday, greeted His Excellency, upon his return from California, believe that no man, having been the object of such a demonstration of interest and affection, can possibly deny what appears plainly to be a State-wide demand for "one year more of Walsh."

At this writing, however, the secret is still the Governor's. His Excellency MAY declare his intention early today. In any event you will want to know how the politicians and statesmen of all parties receive his announcement, whether that announcement be the desired and generally expected "Yes," or a disappointing "No."

It would be easy to give expression to the preference of the great rank and file of the Governor's own party, and of many thousands of Massachusetts independents—who know an able, fearless and independent Governor when they see one—but in the first instance the decision belongs to Governor Walsh. His Excellency, therefore, is today a news figure of the first magnitude. The Sunday AMERICAN'S "Walsh" story will be the most interesting printed in Boston.

Roger W. Babson, the distinguished Massachusetts authority on economics, declares in a Sunday AMERICAN interview in favor of the government ownership of an American merchant marine.

"I began as a standpatter," Mr. Babson says, "I was a determined opponent of the government ownership of steamships. What I found out in South America made me change my mind."

Mr. Babson explains what he "found out in South America," and every manufacturer, every jobber and every merchant in New England will find his story of great and lively interest.

New England showed an early concern in the development of larger and more cordial business dealings with South America. Some of us have been wondering why the discussion and the enthusiasm has apparently brought no results. Mr. Babson illuminates THAT question, also.

A certain young lady in the Back Bay is NOT going to marry the young gentleman she has been seen with so frequently in public. The young lady tells us all about it. She is going to marry ANOTHER and di mi! she never had matrimonial intentions in the other direction, anyhow.

An extremely lively and gossipy Boston story, this one, with photographs of everybody and ALL the names.

Tuesday of the coming week will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the passing of John Boyle O'Reilly, editor, poet, soldier and gentleman. Mr. T. B. Fitzpatrick and Mr. A. Shuman have written their recollections of the great and versatile Irishman for publication exclusively in the Sunday AMERICAN. None knew the real John Boyle O'Reilly more intimately than these two Boston merchants, and the O'Reilly corner of tomorrow's AMERICAN will be a reminiscental treat from the first line to the last.

Were you aware that the old-fashioned "orphan asylum" appears to be gradually passing out of existence in Massachusetts? The more modern, and apparently much happier, way of taking care of the motherless and fatherless is to "place them out," to find homes for them with private families. A Sunday AMERICAN story calls attention to the fact that the number of Massachusetts "institutions" for the housing and care of orphans has decreased in the past ten years by no less than eighteen.

And, of course, stories of the great (and dreadful) war from the point of view of all the warring nations:
